MAID SAYS MRS. CARMAN CONFESSED MURDER

WARRANT FOR INJURED GIRL

KAISER TO CRUSH HIS BRITISH FOE BY SEA, AIR AND LAND INVASION

Germany is preparing to deal England a crushing blow, by the air, the sea and the land, according to rumors, reports and dispatches from various news centres.

The whole movement, as it is now planned, revolves around an invasion of England by a monster fleet of aeroplanes and Zeppelins, estimated at from 200 to 300.

Telegrams from Rotterdam and Amsterdam stated that German factories where Zeppelin dirigibles and aeroplanes are constructed are working night and day. Airships and aeroplane sheds are being constructed at Brussels, Antwerp and other points in Belgium. The Copenhagen correspondent of the Times reports that he has learned from a reliable German source that airship sheds are being erected at Tondern, in Schleswig, and at Rostock, near the Baltic Sea in Mecklenberg-Schwerin.

FLEET TO COME OUT

Information, said to have been received from Berlin at The Hague, is to the effect that while all England is paralyzed by the dash of the aeroplanes, the German fleet is to come out of the Kiel, engage the British fleet and allow the crossing of the German army of invasion from Ostend and Leebrugge. The German plans rest on the supposition that the south coast of England will be left absolutely without protection, all of Admiral Sir John Jellicoe's ships being engaged in the great North Sea battle.

The German newspapers, by way of preparing public opinion for this great stroke, publish extravagant dispatches dilating on British nervousness and the fear of unavoidable destruction by Germany. The German fleet is described as awaiting with passionate impatience the moment when it can make a dash at the enemy.

A correspondent who has visited Berlin declares he has information that the Germans are building 200 aeroplanes especially for operations against England, and that these are of a new and extra large type, capable of carrying 1,000 pounds of bombs in addition to the weight of the pilot and bomb thrower.

An American woman, according to another Berlin dispatch, encountered Count Zeppelin in the lobby of the Kaiserhof and asked, excitedly: "Tell me when are the Zeppelins going to London?"

"Wait and see. Only give us time, madame," replied Count Zeppelin, bowing politely.

REPULSE ALL ATTACKS.

Attacks by the Germans on the allies along the Franco-Belgian front are increasing in violence, but they have all been repulsed, according to the official French statement issued here this afternoon. The statement indicates that the allies are holding firmly and checking the German attacks on the battle front on the frontier, which extends from Nieuport, a Belgium coast town, through Dixmude to La Bassee, southwest of Lille.

A Cettinje dispatch to the Messagero, Rome, says that the British and French war fleets in the Adriatic have destroyed Castelnuovo fortress just outside of the Gulf of Cattaro and north of the entrance. The Austrian fleet is reported to have lost a submarine and a torpedo boat destroyer.

Continued raids by Epirote troops on Albanian territory are creating tense feeling between Italy and Greece, says a Rome dispatch. The newspaper declares that Italy has notified Germany, Austria, England, France and Russia that it will not endure further violation of Albanian territory. It is expected that Italy's next step will be the landing of troops at Avalona if the Epirote raids continue. If this action is taken it is expected that Greece will protest and if her protest fails, she will declare war against Italy.

Terrific fighting continues today along the Franco-Belgian border where the grand assault of the Germans along the entire line has been repelled, although the Kaiser's men fought with wonderful valor to break the allies' western front from Arras to Nieuport.

A dispatch today to the London Chronicle says the allies have retaken Bruges, the capital of West Flanders, Belgium, an important city of about 55,000 inhabitants. Bruges was recently occupied by the Germans in their advance upon Ostend and is in the zone of the present fighting.

London dispatches today say that of the 150,000 refugees in

MAID WHO ACCUSES HER MISTRESS

Celia Coleman, the colored woman, who swears Mrs. Carman confessed to her she killed Mrs. Bailey. Photograph taken during the coroner's inquest.

GIRL SWEARS ACCUSED SAID: "DON'T KNOW WHY I KILLED THAT WOMAN"

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Celia Coleman, a colored woman employed in the Carman home at Freeport when Mrs. Louise Bailey was shot to death there, testified at the trial of Mrs. Florence Carman today that Mrs. Carman had confessed the murder to her. She also swore that on the evening when Mrs. Bailey was murdered Mrs. Carman went out of the kitchen door of the house, that she (the witness) heard a shot and that Mrs. Carman re-entered the house with a pistol in her hand.

The State had reserved the Coleman woman as its star witness and she struck severe blows at the defence. Mrs. Carman watched her closely during her testimony, and at times there were traces of tears in the defendant's eyes, but in no other way did she show any traces of emotion.

STARTLING TESTIMONY OF CELIA COLEMAN, THE MAID

Celia Coleman gave her testimony in a loud, steady voice. Mrs. Carman watched her attentively. After she had answered the preliminary questions her examination proceeded thus:

Q—Were you in service in the home of Dr. Carman on June 20? A—Yes.

Q—Were you at home that night? A—Yes.

Q—What did you see? A—I saw Mrs. Carman and the rest of the family at dinner.

Q—What time was that? A—About 7 p. m.

Q—What did you see after that? A—Young Elizabeth Carman came into the kitchen, and shortly after Mrs. Carman came in.

Q—How was she dressed? A—In a kimona and a house cap and had a shawl thrown over her head.

Q—What happened then? A—Elizabeth took hold of her mother's dress and Mrs. Carman told her to go into the front room.

Q—What happened then? A—Mrs. Carman went out of the kitchen by the rear door.

Q—What happened then? A—I heard a shot.

Q—How long was this after Mrs. Carman had left by the rear door? A—About a minute; it was a very short time.

Q—What happened then? A—I ran into the pantry and had just returned when Mrs. Carman came in the rear door. She had a pistol in her hand.

Q—Did Mrs. Carman say anything to you? A—Yes; she said, "I shot him."

Q—What did you do then? A—I said, "Mrs. Carman don't go into the doctor's office."

Q—Did she go into the doctor's office? A—Yes.

Q—Did you go with her? A—Yes, I went in, but Mrs. Carman just stopped at the door and then went up into her room.

Q—Who was in the office at that time? A—Dr. Carman, Mrs. Carman, a short man and the dead woman.

Q—Did any one come into the office after that? A—Yes, Mrs. Powell (Mrs. Carman's sister).

Q—What did you do after that? A—I went up to my room.

Q—Did you see Mrs. Carman again that night? A—Yes, I saw her in her room. She was in her night robe.

Q—Did you see her the next morning? A—Yes.

GOD FORGIVE ME.

Q—Did she say anything to you? A—Yes.

Q—What did she say? A—Mrs. Carman said: "Oh, Celia, what did I kill that woman for? I hope God will forgive me. You stick to me and if anything happens to you I'll take care of your little boy."

Q—Did you see Mr. Levy there that day? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Was Mrs. Carman present? A—Yes.

Q—Did she introduce you to him? A—Yes, she said he was Lawyer Lynch. Mrs. Carman winked at me when the lawyer was talking to me. He asked me if I saw anybody pass through the kitchen.

Q—Did the lawyer come back the next day? A—Yes.

Q—What did he ask you? A—He asked me the same questions and read a statement to me.

Q—Did he ask you to sign the statement? A—Yes.

Q—Did you sign it? A—Yes.

Q—Was the statement true? A—No.

Q—After the shooting did Mrs. Carman come down to the kitchen and build a fire? A—Yes.

THE BURNED LETTERS.

Q—Did she burn anything? A—Yes.

Q—What? A—A number of letters.

Q—Did she send you for her father? A—Yes.

Q—What did she tell you to tell her father? A—Mrs. Carman sent me out to tell her father to come into the house and get the revolver and carry it out to the barn.

Q—Did Mrs. Carman say anything to you about looking after you? A—She said that if I would say what she wanted me to that she would take care of my boy.

Q—Did you sign an affidavit? A—Yes.

Q—Did you know what was in that affidavit? A—Yes, but it was not true.

Q—Who told you to say the things contained in the affidavit? A—Mrs. Carman.

Q—Who took the affidavit? A—Mr. Levy.

Q—Did he say anything to you?

DYING WOMAN SAYS SUITOR OF 60 SHOT HER

LAWRENCE, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Carmille Fountain was shot and battered within an inch of her life in her home at No. 312 Market street, today, and the police have sent out a general alarm for Teophile DeSesco in connection with the case. The woman is on the dangerous list at the Lawrence Hospital.

She was forty, he sixty, and for two years, it is understood, he had been courting her. Today he packed his trunks at his home at No. 125 Springfield street, then went to the woman's house.

An hour later, William Devaney and Albert Dupuis, passing, heard groans and entered to find the woman upon the floor, in a room bloodspattered and disarranged by the struggle in which she had been injured. Before the ambulance arrived, she told them that DeSesco had come, demanded she flee with him, and when she refused had struck her on the head, then shot her twice through the shoulder.

One man in the neighborhood heard the shots, but thought nothing of them. The man is believed to have taken a car for Boston, and the police have been notified.

Harrison Pays Walsh Tribute

Congressman Harrison of Mississippi, after a call on Postmaster Murray with Congressman Dietrick, today, said: "Governor Walsh is a splendid executive and is available material for national politics."

The Congressman has been making speeches at Dietrick rallies. He left today to tour the South with Postmaster-General Burleson.

POLICE AT BEDSIDE OF GIRL

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Frances Fernands, the twenty-year-old girl who, when surprised in the third floor apartment of Mrs. George E. Kinsman at No. 30 Arcadia street, Dorchester, jumped from a window breaking both legs. The warrant charges her with breaking and entering, and Patrolman John Ridge has been detailed to stand guard at the hospital over Miss Fernands till she is able to appear in court.

The police also are looking for one or two young men who may be connected with the case. One young man ran to the police station to give the alarm when the girl was hurt, and another called at the hospital to see her and left without giving his name. The police believe they may know something, and Captain Michael Crowley of Dorchester, said:

"We are looking for these young men who seem to have such an abnormal interest in Miss Fernand's welfare."

MISS FERNANDS STORY.

Miss Fernands told her story to the police today. She said:

"I entered the Kinsman flat by mistake, thinking it was my aunt's home. I became confused when Mrs. Kinsman came in. I knew their flat had been robbed before and I was afraid they would suspect me. I lost my head and jumped from the window."

Mr. Kinsman did not wish to prosecute the girl but his name was used as complainant so that the affair may be cleared up.

Mrs. Kinsman said today that the finding of the girl in the house was the culmination of a series of thefts from her flat, which had so alarmed her that she had been afraid to stay home while her husband was at work.

Mrs. Kinsman, who is a bride of only five months, said:

"We had been missing things from our flat for about four months and I was so timid as a result of this mys-

MEDICAL MEN AT FUNERAL OF DR. MUMFORD

Many prominent physicians throughout New England today attended the funeral of the late Dr. James Gregory Mumford, physician in charge of the Clifton Springs, N. Y., Sanatorium, formerly of the Carney Hospital, and one of the foremost men in medical literature in America, at the Emmanuel Church, Newbury street, Back Bay.

The services were conducted by the Rev. L. M'Powell, D. D., president of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y. He was assisted by the Rev. Elwood Worcester, D. D., pastor of the Emmanuel Church; Rev. S. S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and the Rev. Dr. Samuel McCoomb of the Emmanuel Church. The burial choir was sung by a vested choir of men and boys.

Among the honorary pall bearers were President Garfield of Williams College, James J. Storrow, Drs. T. H. and W. J. Mayo, the celebrated surgeons, Dr. E. L. Scudder, Dr. W. P. Donaldman, Dr. E. H. Bradford, dean of the Harvard Medical School, Frederick Parker, Gus Agassiz, Dr. E. A. Codman, Charles Knox, John F. Moors, Winthrop Chandler, Dr. M. Rotch and H. A. Stone.

$3,829 Award for "L" Car Collision

For injuries received in an "L" car collision at the corner of Bond street and Concord avenue, Cambridge, in April, 1912, Miss Cecelia Sloan, of Cambridge, was today awarded $3,829 by a jury of the Middlesex county court.

2 Months' Sentence for Auto Violation

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 21.—Reuben Scott, a saloon keeper, was sentenced today to two months in the house of correction on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He appealed and was held in $200.

U. S. PROTEST OF SEIZURE BY BRITISH SHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Acting Secretary of State Lansing today lodged with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, a formal protest against the seizure by a British cruiser of the American tank steamer John D. Rockefeller.

The John D. Rockefeller, an American ship carrying a cargo of petroleum from Copenhagen to New York, was held up near the Orkney Islands and forced to go into port under convoy. Inasmuch as the United States has not been informed that petroleum is a contraband under the British rules of war and as there is no question raised as to any change of registry in the case of the John D. Rockefeller, which was plying between two neutral ports, the State Department has requested an immediate explanation as to the reason why the tank steamer was held up.

Acting Secretary of State Lansing said today that he was still without information of the details of the seizure of the tank steamer Brindilla and that the United States would make no move until the consul at Halifax made a full report on the matter.

O'Hearn Lifts Ban Off Five Hospitals

Five of the eleven hospitals which were notified as to their inadequate fire escapes and exits satisfied Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn today that steps have already been taken towards full compliance with the building laws and the ban on those institutions was lifted. The hospitals which so notified the commissioner were:

Bertha C. Hart Hospital, No. 95 Moreland street; Bay State Hospital, No. 310 Bay State road; Hessey Hospital, No. 345 Beacon street; Fenway Hospital, No. 68 Moreland street; Carrie E. Smith Hospital, No. 56 Burrough street.

Contracts being let for immediate changes. The ban of the commissioner is now lifted from these institutions.

GIRL CAUGHT IN ROOM LEAPS THREE STORIES

terious disappearance of my things that I developed the habit of leaving the house with my husband in the morning and spending the day with my mother in South Boston.

FOUND DOOR OPEN.

"When I returned home earlier than usual yesterday I found the front door to my apartment unlocked and the key in the open door. Thinking that my husband had perhaps come home earlier than usual I entered and spoke his name in a loud voice.

"For answer I heard the door of my room close abruptly, and it then dawned on me that someone was in the house who had no right to be there.

"Then I went out into the hall and told the lady in the lower flat to call an officer as I had a burglar in my apartment. She immediately became hysterical and said that she didn't dare to go for a policeman.

"While I was out in the hall my visitor left the bedroom and barricaded 'himself' in the bathroom. I thought all the time that of course it was a man burglar.

"Then I entered the dining room and went to the bathroom door. I heard noises inside.

FEMALE VOICE REPLIED.

"Then I got the surprise of my life. A female voice cried out in terror, 'Oh, please don't. Let me out and I'll confess all. Please let me out.'

"I was thunderstruck. Then I thought that the woman in the bathroom might be a big woman and have a club or something, so I said, 'I'm going to get an officer.'

"I had no key as it was on the inside of the bathroom door. So I ran downstairs intending to go to Station 11, which is only a block away. When I reached the piazza I heard a neighbor say, 'Someone has jumped and is killed.'

"I didn't wait to see who it was, as I was frightened myself by this time and the woman, whoever it was, was groaning terribly. I rushed to the police station and told my story. When I had finished a young man rushed up to the captain all out of breath and said, 'Quick, I want an ambulance to go to No. 30 Arcadia street at once, a young woman has jumped and is dying up there.' The captain said that I had already told him of the case, and when I arrived back at the house they were just putting the woman into the ambulance.

SURPRISED BY FIND.

"What was my surprise to learn that my strange visitor was none other than Miss Fernands, a niece of the Dowds, who have the middle flat. I learned that Miss Fernands had been in the habit of coming to the Dowds' home early in the afternoon to start the fire and help get supper, as both Mr. and Mrs. Dowd work during the day.

"She borrowed some keys from a next-door neighbor saying that she wanted to get into her aunt's flat and that she had forgotten her key. Both houses are owned by the same person and are identical in arrangement, so it happened that the keys Miss Fernands borrowed fitted my flat too.

"When I went into my flat I found my valuable furs on the floor under the window from which Miss Fernands jumped. The closet door was open and things were tipped over and the curtains were hanging out of the window where she had taken them with her."

No Need to Be Lonesome Now

We have all heard the word "lonesome," and how we abhor it! "But do you know," said a very lovely girl recently, "I'm never lonesome. I have a sure cure for lonesomeness, and I am always glad to recommend my friend to all who will listen and be benefited. The embroidery friend is always a comfort and an interesting friend."

The dainty pieces that one can embroider nowadays is a positive boon to girls and women who wish to spend their time profitably and wisely. Richmond Mayor in Appeal to Curley on Cotton Plan

Mayor Curley has been appealed to by Mayor George Ainslee of Richmond to induce New England manufacturers to use cotton wherever possible in packing their products.

The letter from Mayor Ainslee reads:

I want to make a suggestion to you and to leave it to your discretion how to bring it to the attention of the people of New England if you think it worth while. The suggestion is this, that your manufacturers use cotton product wherever possible in packing their own products. I know of one firm in Louisville, Ky., which has increased its use of cotton bags 625 a day. Formerly they were using $180,000 worth of cotton goods a year in the packing of their products. Now they are using at the rate of $367,500 worth. They are many things not now packed in cotton that can be so packed which would raise our own consumption of the crop by 50 per cent. New England can wield immense power in this movement and it is plainly to its interest to do so.

Servant Accused in Cabot Will Contest

In the will fight over the $1,500,000 estate of the late Louis Cabot of Milton, it is alleged that Edward F. Woodward, in the employ of the testator for twenty-five years, prejudiced Cabot against his son-in-law, Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, and used Cabot's daughter, Mrs. Charlotte H. Bartol, and her husband, Dr. John W. Bartol, in effecting the alleged prejudice. The will is being contested by Mary C. Cabot, daughter of the testator and wife of Dr. L. Vernon Briggs.

TWOHIG AGAIN ACCUSES POLICE IN GIRL'S CASE

Former Representative James J. Twohig today made point blank charges that police intimidation has made it impossible for him to secure a hall in South Boston in which to hold a meeting of protest against the arrest of Katherine Driscoll, a little lame girl who lives on Tudor street, South Boston, for loitering.

"The police are afraid of the people knowing the situation," said Twohig.

He told how he had actually secured one hall, and how the manager later came to him and begged him to release the contract. Here is Twohig's story.

SAVES MANAGER'S JOB.

"Last Sunday I went to J. Klemis, manager of Dahlgren Hall, and told him I wanted to hire the hall for a meeting to be held last night. I gave him a $4 deposit, and he gave me a receipt."

Twohig displayed the receipt.

"Well, yesterday Klemis came to me and asked me to give up the meeting. I said: 'I've got your receipt for a deposit on the hall.' He said:

"'I didn't know you were going to say anything against the police.'

"I asked him what he cared about the police, and he said: 'It will cost me my job if you hold this meeting.' So I said I didn't want anyone to lose his job. I said: 'I could hold you to this contract, but I won't.'

POLICE ABUSE OF POWER.

"I thought all this was very funny at the time, but since then I have learned that from the time I paid my deposit on the hall till he came to me and got me to give up my contract, six policemen were up there to see him.

"The police don't want me to tell the people the whole situation. People may know of cases in their own neighborhood, but I wanted to show and was prepared to show how bad conditions are all over South Boston, and how the officers are abusing their power everywhere.

"This little Driscoll girl, lame, takes care of her brothers and sisters, and if she went on to the street for air she surely had a right to.

"I have thought of organizing an open-air meeting of protest, but I don't believe the police would give me a permit for that."

Joshua Crane to Wed on Oct. 31

Joshua Crane, former Harvard football coach and wealthy Bostonian, will marry Katherine Symes of Denver, October 31.

The engagement has just been announced.

Miss Symes is a leader of Denver's fashionable set. The news of the engagement is a surprise, as the marked attention paid Miss Symes by Mr. Crane during his recent visit to Denver was followed by denials of both that there was any engagement. The wedding is scheduled to take place at the home of the bride's mother, on Logan street, Denver.

Bates Asks Right to Dispose of Land

Relief Fund for Belgians Growing

The interest taken by the people of Boston and of New England in promoting the "New England Belgian Relief Fund" is highly gratifying to the members of the committee and to E. VEGETABLES GO FOR A SONG; CITY MARKET RUSH

Boston's free public market at Castle street and Shawmut avenue had a bing-bang day of it today.

It was the biggest day the market has had. Hundreds came to buy—and they bought. Vegetables were sold almost for a song. Here was how some were sold:

Cabbage—Three big heads for a nickel.

Lettuce—Three big heads for a nickel.

Squash—From five to twenty-five cents, the average price being a cent a pound.

Potatoes—Twenty cents a peck; sixty to seventy-five cents a bushel.

Hand-picked apples — Fifteen cents for a generous peck that was really a peck and a half.

AUCTION OFF SQUASH.

J. E. Farmer of Billerica, one of those selling produce at the new market, gave Boston something new by auctioning off his vegetables. It went something like this:

Auctioneer (holding up a squash which must have weighed 13 to 15 pounds): "Name your price."

Housewife: "Five cents."

Second housewife: "Six cents."

Third housewife: "Eight cents."

And so on. The big squash actually sold for 15 cents! The average price was a penny a pound.

Many persons in autos visited the market and made purchases. Simon E. Hecht, a Summer street wool merchant, visited the market with Mrs. Hecht and bought a box of apples and a bushel of potatoes.

Mayor Curley came up, looked things over and said:

"This is great. It's a big success and is going to be bigger."

Dr. Fillmore Moore will lecture in Social Hall, Tremont Temple, tomorrow afternoon on "Creative Health." Frank B. Sanborn will preside.

COMPROMISE SITE PICKED FOR STATUE

Mayor Curley arbitrated with a big stick, and today the Park and Recreation department and the Art Commission got together on the question of a site for Daniel Chester French's $20,000 statue of Wendell Phillips.

The Art Commission wins a partial victory through the compromise. And the compromise site was proposed by Charles Gibson of the Park and Recreation department. Chairman Dillon of that department smoothed everything out by promising to "embower" the statue, and everybody seemed to feel that when the statue was "embowered" that would be perfectly satisfactory.

The Art Commission has contended for a site in the Public Garden. The Park and Recreation department has favored the Common. The site chosen is in the Public Garden, about forty feet nearer Boylston street than the site originally proposed by the Art Commission.

Mayor Curley called the conflicting boards into session in his office today. "Gentlemen," he said, "let me call your attention to one fact. We are all working for the same boss. Our duty is to pull together. This statue is entitled to as good a site as we can give it. I suggest we compromise, right here and now, and pick a site."

There followed an hour's debate. The Art Commission has power to pick sites for statues, but the Park and Recreation department has power to regulate all parks. The two powers conflicted.

It was finally Charles Gibson, principal opponent of the Garden site, who suggested the compromise. The statue will stand near the corner of Charles and Beacon street, in the Public Garden, its back toward Charles street. The proposal was unanimously accepted.

STOMACH SOUR? STOP INDIGESTION, GAS, HEARTBURN---PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Don't suffer! Regulate your upset stomach in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. and Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered, you get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear. Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Put an end to stomach trouble by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.—ADVERTISEMENT.

MRS. TIMAYENIS ILL, DE LUXE STORY HELD UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Illness will prevent Mrs. Alice S. Timayenis, wife of Demosthenes T. Timayenis, Greek consul in Boston, from testifying at the trial of James J. Farmer, "Col. Bill" Hartley and eight others of the American Authors' Association, who are charged with using the mails to defraud in the sale of de luxe editions of books.

Five years ago Mrs. Timayenis paid $2,000 for a set of Poe and a set of Hogarth, and $2,000 for a book of birds. On the Poe and Hogarth she was able to realize $23 at auction, and on the birds $26.50.

About that time J. J. Farmer was negotiating with Edward S. Ellis, writer of stories for boys, for a series of "Grandfather Tales." Some one got an idea that it would be a good plan to organize a special company for the publication of the tales and to persuade Mrs. Timayenis to supply the capital. She gave six bons for $2,000 each for this purpose, paying $10,000 on them.

COLONEL BILL'S LETTERS.

Letters written by "Col. Bill" Hartley from Boston to Farmer concerning the Timayenis played an important part in the trial when they were ready for the jury. The letters were as follows:

Friend Jim:—Regarding the name of the company, all I can say is that she wants her family name to appear for sentimental reasons only. Thomas is her family name, was her first husband's name, and appears in her present husband's name, as per—ships—Dionisyios Thomas Timayenis. And still we wonder at crime. However, I can fix it up any way you want it done, so let me know your pleasure, dear Sir, and I'll do it.

Four days later Hartley wrote:

My Dear Jim—Your's okay at breakfast. Glad name decided on is Hartley-Thomas." Hope it will be lucky. Hard work may make it so. What's the answer? Hard work.

I told you some time ago to write me in such a way about the company that I could show it to her. The one today was good in part, but the mention of the Oriental series spoiled it for showing purposes. Don't do it again or I'll bite you. Write private word on separate sheet. And don't write me any more letters on Kellar-Farmer paper. Use A. A. A. or plain paper. I hate the sight and sound of Kellar.

Where's my $1,000 check?

COLONEL BILL'S HUMAN.

In the following note Colonel Bill gives free rein play to his playful humor. The original purpose of the note was apparently to advise Farmer that he had better not be too eager about starting an account with some of the money advanced by Mrs. Timayenis. But the whimsical Colonel Bill strays so far afield from his main subject as to touch on Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who was returning from Europe at the time. The letter is dated June 17, 1910, and reads:

Today is a holiday here, Bunker Hill day accounts for so much bunk in Boston, perhaps. I don't suppose Clenn (referring to James Farmer's son, who was later convicted in Boston) will care to come here tomorrow on account of just getting back, and also because the Roosevelt parade may have some attraction for him. I wouldn't go across the street to shake his hand if he were here, and as for the parade it doesn't interest me at all—sort of Ziegfeld anyhow.

Now, Jim, in closing let me say that I will do just as you say about the Hartley-Thomas matter. If you want $2,000 to open an account with, all right; only I thought it would look better if I did that part of the business. However, I will do just as you say.

Only remember that there are people in New York who would be glad to see you in hot water, Jim, dear, and getting the worst of all their evil machinations against you. But a little caution on your part will foil them and eventually you will win out, because you are on the level and have nothing to hide or fear. Honesty generally gets the verdict in the end.

BRAVELY GOES TO BOSTON.

The following letter shows that Mrs. Timayenis got at least $25 in dividends from the Hartley-Thomas Company:

Friend Jim: I leave for Bean Town on the midnight to look something over. Of course, I cannot go round over there much, but I will be as careful as possible. If I must not be seen over there I can't help it. Yet this trick looks so good I'm going to try it out. Only you and my wife know where I am going.

By the way, she (meaning Mrs. Timayenis) wrote me a long letter of complaint about the tenor of yours to her inclosing the check for $25. I wrote her at once and sent back the check. I promised I'd write you and ask you to send her one of the Hartley-Thomas Company checks. I suppose it's just a matter of sentiment with her to have a Hartley-Thomas check, probably to show to her friends before she cashes it. So do it, old man, and let her have her way. Thine,

BILL.

Reform Ordered in Canning of Eggs

The Boston Board of Health has drawn up regulations for cleanliness in egg-breaking and canning establishments, the evils in which trade were exposed by the AMERICAN and were followed by prosecutions by the District Attorney. The chief rule is that "all eggs shall be candled before breaking and such eggs as at the time of candling are known to be or suspected of being unfit for food shall not be broken for food.

WOMEN POINTED THE WAY TO MEN

How and Why the Filene Shops Are Offering NEW Overcoats, at the Season's OPENING, at a Price Approximating COST OF PRODUCING

A few years ago men had a horror of entering so-called department stores. These were regarded as the eminent domain of women. Nowadays men compose a very fair proportion of the clientele of many such stores.

There are sound reasons for this. First of all, the stores changed—some of them. They awoke to the fact that men must have their own exclusive shops, presided over by men. Then gradually the man-public awoke to the fact that a large store organization, dealing in needfuls for all members of the family, was in position to give them exceptional attention and exceptional values.

In Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and other cities this truth has been driven deep home. Men in those cities have learned that the same brains back of the service and economies appreciated by their wives and sisters and daughters are pretty sound brains to solve the problem of men's apparel.

Not So Fast Here

New England men have been the last to break away from traditions and go where service and values are best. Perhaps the appeal of the stores was not as strong as it might have been. At all events, the Filene apparel shops for men have struck a new note, and one that has met instant and hearty response. The Filene men's clothes shops have been successful from the outset. Their business has shown a sound and substantial growth.

Doubtless this has in large measure been due to arguments advanced by the women folk. The latter have reasoned that a house supplying them with such service and merchandise at such savings must be equipped to supply men with similar service, merchandise and economies.

Cutting Across Lots

Two ways were open this season—one to let matters take their course and win a satisfactory volume of business by steady plugging—the other to adopt methods that would make and hold as many men friends for the Filene shops store in a few months as ordinarily would be won in years. The latter course was chosen.

Last month 1069 new Fall and Winter suits, made especially for Filene's, were offered at a price approximating cost of production. The response was heartier than we had dared to hope, two days' selling having virtually cleaned up the stock.

Tomorrow 1009 new Fall and Winter overcoats, also made especially for Filene's, are to be offered. Again the price will be less than men would expect to pay at the season's end.

In the columns to the right are given particulars of this record-breaking sale of new overcoats.

It is a rather short story, but TREMENDOUSLY IMPORTANT TO NEW ENGLAND MEN.

Filene's

"The impossible is impossible only until someone accomplishes it"

MEN

Filene's

HERE'S where we AGAIN GO HUNTING for three times as much business on our MEN'S clothes floor this season as usual methods and usual values would bring. The fun begins tomorrow morning at 8:30

THE SAME men and methods making this the world's largest house specializing in women's made-ready apparel will eventually win for us a commanding place as clothiers to men. But we don't propose to await the natural drift of events. Last month we demonstrated this by offering 1069 men's ABSOLUTELY NEW Fall and Winter suits at $16, which just about covered cost of production. The suits went like hot-cakes, despite the excessively hot weather. That meant 1069 more or better men friends. Now we parallel the suit event by presenting

1009 $25 to $35 OVERCOATS

ALL NEW Fabrics --THIS SEASON'S New styles---Made for Us this Season

$16

—A Price So Remarkable that We Must Set a Limit of ONE COAT TO A MAN

If you doubt the values, bring your clothes experts in with you. Fabrics are absolutely new and warranted, many of them being imported. Tailoring of a kind that will amaze those who know, in view of the price.

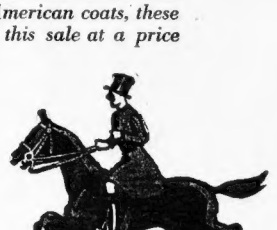

Wide range of patterns, from conservative dark Oxfords to extreme styles in highly-colored fabrics. Plenty of coats for conservative dressers. Full or quarter lined in silk or satin, with deep facings and piped seams.

Seventeen NEW models, including balmacaans, raglans and single or double breasted regents. Also ulsters, shawl-collar coats, dress coats and short form-fitting coats, single or double breasted. Coats for STOUT men, up to size 46.

NOTE—Originally this offering was limited to American coats, but later we decided to add a percentage of ENGLISH-MADE top coats. As with the American coats, these London garments were made especially for us and are going into this sale at a price scarcely covering cost of production and duty.

MAKING HISTORY

It is no exaggeration to say that this offering of more than a thousand NEW and RIGHT-STYLE overcoats, at an October price less than might be expected in March or April, is unprecedented in Boston's history. Indeed there has been nothing even approaching it.

But it is merely one of the means by which we propose to put our men's clothes shop on the map, for keeps, in a hurry.

And it will abundantly prove, as did the hearty response to last month's offering of suits, that the men of Boston and vicinity believe a Filene advertisement when they see it.

We predict that the response to the suit offering will be eclipsed by this, if such thing be possible.

A good part of the men's clothes shop (second floor) has been turned over to this event. Extra salesmen have been provided. WINDOWS WORTH A LOOK—Be sure to see them.

PEOPLE OF WARSAW FLEE CITY; GERMAN ATTACK IMMINENT

England 100,000 of them are penniless. The remaining 50,000 have very little money and they, too, will soon be without funds.

Refugees continue to pour in from Belgium and the boats from Flushing, Calais and other cities on the Northern coast of the continent are crowded to capacity. Lord Gladstone, ex-Governor-General of South Africa, and his associates who have charge of the Belgian and French refugees in England, are swamped by the steady influx and are assigning batches of fugitives to various municipalities.

An engagement between German torpedo boats and hostile submarines in the Baltic Sea near the island of Rugen, off the German coast, is reported from Stockholm.

FLIGHT FROM WARSAW.

The people of Warsaw are in flight from that city, according to Berlin dispatches received at Amsterdam, on account of the advance of the German army and the imminence of an attack on the city.

The flight of the people, it is said, has been advised by the Russian government. The Russian announcement that Austro-German forces along the Vistula have been routed is officially denied by the Berlin War Office.

Vienna today announces officially Austrian successes in Galicia and Bukavina. This statement contains the first news that the Austrians have taken the offensive in the province of Bukavina, where, at the opening of the war, the Russian advance met with practically no resistance.

According to Russian claims today, the forts at Przemysl have been practically destroyed by the accurate fire of the Czar's artillerymen.

The Russian News Agency, Petograd, issues a statement today that the Austro-German forces west of the Vistula have been driven back forty-five miles.

Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital, is reported enveloped by Servians.

In South Africa the rebellion of Colonel Maritz has been virtually broken up.

To Raid England in February, Flyer Says

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 21.—A young German aviator is quoted as saying:

"Our grand aerial raid against England will not be launched before February, though there may be isolated flights in the meantime.

"We are building 200 aeroplanes, capable of carrying 1,000 pounds of explosives apiece, and I am training the flyers now at the special aviation camps. In addition, we are building Zeppelins.

"In the fleet in February will be forty-six Zeppelins and over 200 aeroplanes."

Turks Get Airships and Submarines

LONDON, Oct. 21.—An Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company states that two submarines and a number of aeroplanes are en route to Constantinople for the Turkish navy and army.

PAIN GONE! RUB SORE, RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Rub pain away with a small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacob's Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away. —ADVERTISEMENT.

To Make American Gold Payment Easy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Sir George Paish, former editor of the Statist and now special adviser to the Chancellor of the English Exchequer, today declared here that the United States may not have to pay in gold the $200,000,000 she owes in England. "In the months to come," he said, "England will be buying American wheat and cotton. It probably will not cancel in a few months the sum owed, but it is bound to come in time. In the meantime, arrangements may be made so you will not be embarrassed.'"

Royalist Revolt Against Portugal

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A royalist revolt against the Portuguese government at Braganza, in the district of Tras-Os Monte, is reported in a Reuter dispatch received from Lisbon today. It states that the attempted revolution was quickly suppressed and that government troops are pursuing soldiers who mutinied in sympathy with the royalist plotters. The ringleader, named Beca, is reported to have been arrested.

Londoners Have Zeppelin Neck

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Zeppelin neck is the form of malady now prevalent here. This is the popular term for stiff necks, which are commoner than ever this season because so many people are craning their necks, scanning the heavens as the government searchlights examine the skies for the enemy.

WAR PERSONALS AND SIDELIGHTS

FOOTBALL BY PRISONERS.

BERLIN, via The Hague, Oct. 21.—Julius G. Lay, American consul-general in Berlin, has returned from the officers' prison camp at Torgau, Saxony. He says the British officers play tennis and football, but are not permitted to have liberty in the town.

500,000 WOUNDED.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Dr. Leslie Haden Guest, who established six Anglo-French hospitals in France, says the number of wounded in France is estimated at half a million.

ANATOLE FRANCE will do editorial work for the Army Bulletin, the allies' soldiers' paper.

SIR ROBERT DUFF of the Second Life Guards has been killed in action in France.

PRINCE WOLRAD FREDERICK WALDECK-PYRMONT, half-brother of Emma, Dowager Queen of the Netherlands, is reported killed in the western theatre of war.

SIR WILLIAM OSLER, regius professor of medicine at Oxford, says:

"I think this war will set a new record for low mortality among the wounded. This will be partly due to the self-sterilization of the modern high velocity bullets and partly to efficient field first aid. I have yet to see a wound inflicted by a dum-dum or an explosive bullet."

HUGH GIBSON, secretary of the American legation in Brussels, who is now in London, says there is no truth in reports the German authorities in Belgium have questioned the diplomatic standing of United States Minister Brand Whitlock.

WINSTON CHURCHILL made an aeroplane flight over Antwerp during the siege, according to a letter from a young English officer of marines.

THE CROWN PRINCE, according to a Paris dispatch, was severely wounded in the battle of the Marne. No German surgeons were available, so a French surgeon was asked to operate. The Frenchman demanded a $35,000 fee, which was paid. The $35,000 had been levied on the Frenchman's home town, and the surgeon returned it to the town.

DROWNED IN RUSH FOR BOAT.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—As the last boat left Belgium before the German occupation, six people were pushed into the water by the mob that tried to board the boat, and were drowned.

GET SPY IN HAY STACK.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The English captured one spy who was ensconced in the hollow of a haystack on the very firing lines. He said he had been there a month, and he had provisions for two months more. The haystack was just behind the English trenches, and the spy was able to hear and see much that went on. A telephone wire led from his haystack to the German lines.

INSULT TO WOMAN COST LIFE.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—In Ghent a drunken German soldier made an insulting remark to a woman on the street. A German officer heard and shot down the soldier on the spot.

SIR ROBERT DUFF, owner of vast estates in North Wales, has been killed in battle.

Seek Public-Owned Boston Car Lines

THE YELLOW PERIL

Japanese warnings should not be forgotten.

The Japanese early sought for the truth, and their earliest knowledge was the principle that their strength depended on a healthy stomach. They eat very little and practice "Jiu-Jitsu"—muscular exercise from youth up. The stomach is the centre of the body from which radiates our vitality, strenuosity, our fighting strength. A healthy stomach turns the food we eat into nourishment for the blood stream and the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery refreshes and tones up the stomach walls. Removes the poisonous gases from the system.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulations begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache and constipation.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today at any medicine dealers; it is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

It is not a secret remedy, for its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

For free advice or free booklet on blood, write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Miss Mulry Stumps Against 'Vote' Foes

Miss Minnie Mulry of Revere, one of the star campaigners of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, leaves today for Providence to take part in the campaign of Rhode Island suffragists to defeat for re-election certain members of the State Legislature, who are opposed to woman suffrage.

Fires at 2 Fleeing Brighton Blaze

Patrolman James M. Stack, passing the restaurant of Charles J. Holland at No. 125 Market street, Brighton, early today, saw a spurt of flame and then saw two young men running from the building. He fired two shots after they refused to halt. The fire damage was $25.

Plan Lectures on 'Woman and State'

The schedule of lectures to be given under the auspices of the School Voters' League on "Woman and the State" has just been announced. The first lecturer is to be Mary Austin, who speaks October 24, on "Other People's Children at School."

New High Pressure System Gets Setback

Boston's partly completed $2,000,000 high pressure system of fire department water mains received another expensive setback when Mayor Curley learned the proposed pumping station in the Fort Point Channel had been reported on unfavorably by the War Department.

SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder is troubling you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Official War Reports.

AUSTRIAN.

AUSTRIA.

The battle in central Galicia has increased in force, especially north of the Zawadowka River, where our attacks are progressing. Attempts of the Russians to regain the Magierow Heights (northwest of Lemberg) have been repulsed. In the course of this fighting many Russians were captured, including one Russian general. Several machine guns were also taken.

The Austrians have occupied Stryj, forty-two miles southwest of Lemberg, Kuczurmare and Sereth (in Bukavina) after strong Russian resistance.

FRENCH.

FRANCE.

Throughout yesterday (Tuesday) the attacks of the enemy were particularly violent in Nieuport and La Bassee. All were repulsed with great energy by the allied armies. Along the wings the situation shows no change.

Public Owned Car Lines in Boston Sought

The specific recommendations read to the Public Service Commission by William C. Ewing of the Planning Board were:

1—The ownership of all transportation facilities within the approximate limits of the Metropolitan districts to be taken over by the Commonwealth.

2—That these facilities be operated as a unit by either of two methods as the voters may determine. That is by the State through a manager or by a private company, acting under lease from the Commonwealth.

Plans were submitted for the so-called Wead tunnel between the North and South Stations, the extension of Portland street at the North Station up to the junction of Tremont street and Shawmut avenue, and the joint use of tracks by railroad and elevated cars.

Change Navigation Laws, Urges Duncan

"The navigation laws of the United States must be changed so that our ship owners can contract for their labor in the world market, rather in the market confined exclusively to our own country," declared Albert Greene Duncan, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, in speaking before the Economic Club at a downtown hotel.

Kaiser's Bandmaster Is Taken Captive

PAS DE CALAIS, France, Oct. 21.—The Kaiser's bandmaster-in-chief, gold braid and all, has been captured. A detachment of soldiers in the neighborhood of Ypres came upon the gentleman perched upon a tree stump near Ypres, trying to bandage a slight wound in his hand. His gold baton and his stock of music—including the score for a "Triumphant March into Paris"—were captured. The first night of his captivity he made a half-hearted effort to escape, but was gently hauled back.

Prince of Wales Is "Surprise Packet"

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Prince of Wales has proved a "surprise packet" to the Grenadier guards, with whom he is now doing duty, for endurance and hardiness. Though slim of build, the reserve strength of the Prince is great, and after coming from a long march, he will have a "tub" and then play a vigorous game of racquets at the "Bath Club."

Girl, Five, Dies from Burns.

Christina Thornton, five, daughter of William Thornton of No. 134 Norfolk avenue, is dead at the City Hospital as the result of burns she received while playing in the yard.

MRS. HOWE URGES CLUB TO SQUELCH FLIRTS

By VIOLA ROGERS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—"If a new club for women is started here it should be the 'club to squelch male flirts,'" today declared Mrs. George Howe, the young niece of President Wilson, who caused the arrest of Dr. Ernest White, for flirting. So forward are the "flirts" that Mrs. Howe says she has scarcely ever stepped out of doors in New York that some man has not attempted to force his acquaintance upon her.

"Every woman who travels about in professional and business life in the cars and trains, and who is attractive in any way, knows how these men behave," said Mrs. Howe in her home, No. 132 East Nineteenth street today.

"They are very clever and careful, but, somehow, without looking at them, women of refinement and decency can feel the insult. They will stand beside you and give you an accidental thrust of their arm or knee. They will look intently over the top of their newspapers; they will follow you out of the cars, and when in the subway platform or on the street will say, 'Dearie, I'm yours.'

"As a man said to me a year ago, Oh, you beautiful doll, some along with me.' I called a policeman.

"If one man has tried to flirt with me, '500 is nearer the right number during my three years' residence here. I have often told my husband of these happenings and he suggested I have the next man who insulted me arrested.

"I said to my husband: 'Think how unpleasant it is to go into the court under those circumstances.' He answered: 'You have a big duty to perform; you not only have your own womanhood to consider, but that of the women of the entire city as well. If these rascals go to Blackwell's Island for these crimes against decency they will find their occupation profitable. Arrest the next man who dares to accost you,' and so I did.

"I really think what I have done is the only way to stop the objectionable habit of such men."

MRS. GEORGE HOWE, President's niece, who suggests women organize in war against flirts.

'Masked Ball' Is Given as Boston Theatre Opera

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Verdi's "Masked Ball" was sung for the first time in many years at the Boston Theatre last night. This work is one of the best of the earlier operas of Verdi, and as popular in the character of its melodies as "Rigoletto." It is curious that it has been absent from the local repertories so long.

The scene is laid in Boston, whither it was shifted when the Italian princelings objected to the successful assassination of any royalty. Not taking any interest in colonial Boston, they had no objection to the conspiracy taking place here. Most modern productions take the scene back again to Italy, as did the Boston Opera production in Paris this Spring.

Upon this occasion, by the way, Destinn, Maggie Teyte, Eleanora de Cisneros, Martinelli and Ancona sang the principal roles.

Last night Lynbrook, Ardini, Blanche Hamilton Fox, Opezzo and Ramon Blanchart occupied the important positions. The piece was well staged and the scenic production was one of the best yet seen at the Boston Theatre.

Few of the audience had heard the opera before and the spirited and charming melodies made a pronounced impression.

Blanchart made a noble effort to carry the big baritone part of Reinhart, and succeeded so well that after his "Eri tu" aria in the last act the house broke into prolonged applause.

Miss Fox again proved her ownership of splendid contralto tone as well as exceptional artistry by her performance of the sorceress. Miss Ardini was an attractive page and acquitted herself well in the very difficult coloratura music of the role.

Miss Lynbrook displayed a large and agreeable dramatic soprano in the part of Amelia.

Opezzo is far from being an ideal Governor, but he sings much better than he did at the Boston Opera House. Di Biasi and Florian were two tuneful conspirators. Bovi conducted. For a premier everything went very well. The orchestration is light, but the vocal parts are difficult and there is a great deal of concerted music which requires more rehearsal.

Tragic Life Story of Mildred Sullivan

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Mrs. Southard is corroborated by her sons, Theodore and Winfield, and her daughter-in-law. Winfield Southard will testify, say the authorities, that the man who drove up to his mother's home in an automobile at midnight on Thursday, Sept. 3, was Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, the alleged principal in the case, and that the car which carried the girls was Dudley's maroon-tinted runabout.

He will be supported in this, it is said, by Frank Merrithew, who, with Winfield Southard, is reported to have seen Dr. Dudley's automobile backed up in the rear of his office in the village earlier the same night.

Next of the State's witnesses is Dr. A. E. Graves, the youngest physician in Presque Isle, out of college little more than a year. Here is his story:

"I attended the Presque Isle Fair Thursday, Sept. 3. I did not reach home until nearly midnight. My mother told me a call had come on the telephone for me to hurry down to Mrs. Southard's. I went there in my car. It was about 12:20 when I arrived. I was ushered into an upper room, where I found a young girl lying in bed and another girl sitting there who proved to be Katherine Michaud.

Dr. Graves Is Suspicious.

"I saw that the sick girl was very pale. I asked her what the trouble was and she said she was suffering severe pains. She said she thought she had eaten something that had disagreed with her. I found she had a high temperature and that her pulse was rapid. Her pain was so intense that I gave her a hypodermic of morphine.

"When I asked Miss Michaud the patient's name she seemed so confused that my suspicions became aroused. I was convinced that Miss Michaud did not know the sick girl over well and further questioning brought out the admission from Miss Michaud that she was a stranger to the girl and had only met her at the fair.

"This made me all the more suspicious. I resolved not to do anything more that night. They asked me to call in the morning. When I got home I began to turn the case over in my mind. It didn't look good to me. It impressed me as being queer and irregular.

"I resolved to go next morning and get the full history and report the facts to Medical Examiner Boone and two other doctors in town, which I did. I reached the Southard house next morning at 8:14. That was Friday, September 4, the morning of the day the Sullivan girl is reported to have disappeared. I was met at the door by Miss Michaud. I asked how the patient was and she replied: 'A little better. She was not so feverish during the night.'

Dr. Graves Asks for Truth.

"I told Miss Michaud things didn't look right and she admitted that the thought so, too.

"When I entered the room I asked Miss Sullivan to tell me exactly what ailed her. I told her that I wanted the truth, as I didn't like the looks of things and had decided not to treat her. After some hesitation and tears the Sullivan girl told me she had been treated by a local doctor. She did not mention the doctor's name nor did I ask her to. I felt that was not my province. I simply wished to protect myself.

"I have nothing to conceal nor fear, as I acted entirely within my professional rights.

"I did not remain long Friday morning. I told the girls they must lose no time summoning their own doctor, the physician who had treated her first. I did not consider Miss Sullivan in danger, but I told Miss Michaud she was in a critical condition, more to induce them to send for the other doctor without delay than anything else. The girl required attention.

"However, I did not consider the case dangerous when I saw the girl that morning. Complications may have set in later that day. If she died that same day or night it must have been a very unusual case. I did not consider her in any danger of death. She could have recovered with proper care.

"I had been my plan to get all the facts and to hurry for Medical Examiner Boone and two other doctors, but before I could get back to the Southard house that day, I learned the girl had been taken away in a public carriage. And there you have my side of it. I did not treat the girl."

Healthy, Wrinkle-Free Skin Easy to Have

A dull, drab, muddy complexion, or an over-red, blotchy, pimply or freckled skin, can by a quite simple, harmless and inexpensive method, be changed to one of flower-like radiance and purity. One ounce of common mercolized wax, sold by druggists generally, will remove the most unsightly complexion in from one to two weeks. By its remarkable absorptive power, the withered, faded or discolored layer of thin film-skin which hides the healthier skin underneath, is gradually flecked off in tiny, almost invisible particles. This is done so gently there is no inconvenience, and no trace is left on the skin except that of enhanced beauty. The wax is smeared on like cold cream before retiring, and removed in the morning with warm water.

If the skin be wrinkled or saggy, a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel, will be found most effective. Combining both astringent and tonic properties, this tightens the skin and braces up its supporting muscles.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BABY IN RASH OVER HEAD AND BODY

Took Out All His Hair. Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Healed.

Sherman, Maine.—"When my baby boy was about three weeks old he broke out with a rash all over his head and body which took out all his hair and itched and burned so bad he could not sleep. It came in the form of water blisters and when he would scratch them they would make wet eruptions which continued to grow worse until they were all over his head and body. His clothes would chafe them so that I would have to keep him bandaged.

"I tried many different kinds of soap and remedies but it continued to grow worse until I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed him with the Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I could see that it helped him from the very first. The sore places had taken his hair all out but by the time I had used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks the eruptions were all healed and his skin is as clear and smooth as ever. He now has a fine head of hair and there has never been any sign of the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. John Collins, Feb. 19, 1914.

MAID SWEARS MRS. CARMAN SAID AFTER SHOOTING: "WHY DID I KILL THAT WOMAN."

A—Yes, Mrs. Carman came out and told me she wanted me to swear to something. I came in and Mr. Levy asked some questions. Mrs. Carman winked at me when I answered the questions.

Q—Were they true or false? A—They were false answers.

MAID'S TESTIMONY BEFORE THE CORONER NOT ALLOWED

District Attorney Smith then made an effort to introduce the testimony of the witness before the coroner in an endeavor to give to the attention of the jury the false statements that the woman made in the interest of Mrs. Carman. The court would not allow it, and Mr. Smith then surrendered the witness to Judge Graham for cross-examination.

All during the time that Celia was dealing death blows to her case Mrs. Carman sat rigidly in her seat, her eyes on the witness, her lips firmly set together. Each word uttered by the maid seemed to have telling effect upon her. Tears came to her eyes on one occasion, but they were quickly brushed aside by a lace handkerchief.

Judge Graham then took up the cross-examination.

Q—Very much of Mrs. Carman, weren't you, Celia? A.—Yes.

Q—Had Mrs. Carman said anything to you about having a headache? A.—No, sir.

WAS NOT SURPRISED.

Q—Did you think it an extraordinary thing for her to be dressed that way for dining? A.—No, sir.

Q—Did you hear her coming? A.—I did not hear her. I turned around and saw her.

Q—Where was Elizabeth? A.—She was standing beside me.

Q—How long was Elizabeth there? A.—I don't know.

Q—Well, was it half an hour? A.—No.

Q—Fifteen minutes? A.—I think so, might be twenty minutes.

Q—How long did it take you to wash the dishes? A.—About an hour.

Q—Was there anybody in the dining-room? A.—No.

Q—In the waiting-room? A.—No.

Q—Where was Elizabeth when her mother said, "Stay back"? A.—Beside me.

KNEW INNOCENT WOMAN WAS KILLED, BUT TOLD NOBODY

Q—When you went into the doctor's office and discovered that an innocent woman had been killed, did you say anything to anyone? A.—No.

Q—Did you believe that you were doing what was right? A.—No.

Q—When you said that "God will forgive anything but self-murder," did you mean that God would forgive perjury? A.—Yes.

Q—And you believe that he will forgive you? A.—Yes.

Q—How many times have you committed perjury? A.—Once.

Q—Was it now or before the coroner's jury? A.—It was before the coroner's jury.

Q—Didn't you make any affidavit to Mr. Levy? A.—No.

Q—Didn't you make a statement to District Attorney Smith? A.—Yes.

Q—Didn't you make the statement to District Attorney Smith long before you saw Mr. Levy? A.—Well, it was some time before I saw Mr. Levy.

The court then asked: "You made this statement to Mr. Smith?" A.—Mr. Smith and Mr. Weeks."

The examination of Chief Counsel Graham of the defence continued:

Q—And everything you told them was a lie? A.—Yes.

Q—Haven't you got trouble with your head? A.—Yes, I have headaches.

SAYS SHE DIDN'T SLEEP.

Q—After this shooting, did you go to bed? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you sleep? A.—No.

Q—It was the next morning that you saw Mrs. Carman and she told you that she would take care of your boy if anything happened to you? A.—Yes.

Q—You saw Mr. Platt Conklin, the father of Mrs. Carman, the night of the murder? A.—Yes.

Q—Didn't he ask you if you knew who had committed the crime? A.—Yes.

Q—And who did you tell him?" A.—I said "No."

Q—Wasn't that a lie?

The district attorney objected and the court sustained the objection.

The witness admitted she had said nothing to the first Grand Jury about seeing Mrs. Carman with a pistol in her hand.

Q—Did anyone in the Carman household ever promise you any money? A.—Yes, Mrs. Carman gave me $5 on the second of July.

Q—Did you think that this was a bribe to keep your mouth shut? A.—Yes, she told me that it was for keeping my mouth shut.

SAYS SHE TOLD TRUTH.

Q—On July 13, were you examined by a colored lawyer, a graduate of Harvard? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you tell him the truth? A.—Yes.

Q—Do you know a stenographer named Cheslan? A.—No.

Q—Do you remember being asked questions by this colored lawyer, named P. Q. Morton? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you tell him this true truth? A.—Yes, but he did not ask me everything.

Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, a trained nurse, told of having been slapped in the face by Mrs. Carman in a fit of jealousy on April 20, this year. Mrs. Varance said that Dr. Carman had loaned her $20 on this occasion, and that after he had given her the money Mrs. Carman rattled the window, then entered the office and slapped her and also Dr. Carman.

"She slapped both of us very hard. She demanded the money and I gave it to her."

Dr. Carman often smiles on Mrs. Carman, who merely throws him a non-committal glance. Except at recess intervals, Mrs. Carman seems hardly to acknowledge her husband's presence.

In the rest intervals she sits or stands as close to him as may be.

Simple Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp, and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

SIR WILLIAM OSLER, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says, in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * * In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar-tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and it seems reasonable to assume that the success of Eckman's Alterative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections is due chiefly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Widespread and continued use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis—many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial in such cases, unless some other form of treatment already is succeeding. Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. Therefore, it is safe to take. We make no promises concerning it, any more than reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can order direct.

almost nestling against his shoulder and whispering softly.

Hazel Coombes, who was in Dr. Carman's waiting room when Mrs. Bailey was shot, was asked:

Q—Who else was in the room? A.—Mrs. Bailey and two men.

Q—This second man was a stranger? A.—Yes.

Q—You've been around Freeport a good many years? Knew almost everybody? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you see this man again? A.—Yes.

Q—As you came out of the office the man got up? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you see where he went, A.—I couldn't say.

Q—When you left the lady in black (Mr. Graham always referred thus to Mrs. Bailey) was he still waiting? A.—Yes.

Q—Did the doctor speak to the strange man or look at him? A.—I didn't see.

Q—While you were in the room did the strange man leave the room? A.—I couldn't say.

Q—Did Mrs. Carman, passing through the room, speak to you or the lady in black? A.—She didn't speak to me.

Q—And you have known her for twelve years? A.—Yes.

Coroner Norton was then sworn. It was to who first held Mrs. Carman in the murder case. Mr. Smith asked him when he first received the message announcing the shooting of Mrs. Bailey.

A—About 8:30 o'clock on the night of June 20.

Q—You went at once to the Carman house? A.—I did and found that a woman had been shot in the doctor's office. She was lying on a couch in the office.

Q—Did you ascertain who the woman was? A.—Mrs. Lulu Bailey.

Q—Was she alive or dead? A.—Dead.

Q—Was Dr. Runcle there? A.—I think he came in after I arrived.

Q—What did he do? A.—Aided me in examining the body and locating what seemed to be a bullet under the right breast. I ordered him to cut it out. I took it into my possession and kept it until I turned it over to the District Attorney.

QUESTIONED BY BIGELOW.

Q—Did you mark it in any way? A.—I put a small cross at the base.

Mr. Smith handed the witness a bullet and asked the coroner if he had seen it before.

"That is the bullet which Dr. Runcle removed from the body of Mrs. Lulu Bailey," was the reply. Norton handed the bullet to the District Attorney, wrapped in a bit of absorbent cotton. It was marked in evidence.

Mr. Smith read from Norton's testimony delivered before the Grand Jury. He questioned again, nothing that there was nothing to show that Norton's memory needed refreshing.

Mrs. Carman's counsel took up the cross-examination.

Q—You committed Mrs. Carman, Mr. Norton, upon a deposition made to you by a witness? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you file that deposition? A.—I did not get it back from the District Attorney's office.

From Mr. Frazier.

Q—Do you mean to say that you committed this defendant upon a deposition not filed to file?

The name of this mysterious witness who made the deposition was not then disclosed.

Q—Where was the statement taken? A.—In a room at the Elks' Club.

Q—Was there an inquest being held there? A.—I so considered.

Q—What time of day was it? A.—In the evening.

CALL VICTIM'S HUSBAND.

Q—Who was present? A.—Sheriff Fetik, County Detective Seaman, Mr. Frazier and others.

Q—Didn't you take that statement at my request as District Attorney? A.—Yes.

Q—And verify it as a notary public? A.—As coroner.

The next witness was William D. Bailey, husband of the murdered woman. He is a short man with gray hair and wears spectacles. Mr. Bailey testified that he came home to his house in Hempstead at 5:30 on the night of June 20. At 7:40 he received a telephone message.

Q—Did you go home? A.—In reply to the message I went to Dr. Carman's office.

Q—When you went to the door the first time the woman was the same from three to five minutes before the murder? A.—Yes.

Q—You say that because she was dressed in white? A.—Yes.

Hazel Combs was recalled when Golder was excused.

Q—You saw the last witness on the stand? A.—Yes.

Q—He was the man who came to the door when you were at the office? A.—Yes.

Q—And it was Mrs. Carman who went to the door when he called? A.—Yes.

Q—You are certain? A.—Yes, I have known Mrs. Carman for years.

Q—How was she dressed? A.—In dark clothes.

Archie Post, the next witness, testified that little Elizabeth Carman let him in when he called at the doctor's office on the evening of June 20.

Q—After you went in did anybody else come in? A.—Two ladies.

Q—Young or old? A.—Not very old.

Q—Did you hear a shot? A.—Yes.

HEARD CARMAN GIRL.

Q—Before that had you noticed the portieres into the dining room? A.—Yes.

Q—How long were you there before the shot? A.—About twenty minutes.

Q—Golder was there how long? A.—About ten minutes.

The witness heard the little Carman girl go through the dining room to the kitchen, saying just before that somebody had said, "Stop practicing," and the piano stopped.

Q—How far apart were the portieres? A.—About two inches.

By the court: Q—Could you tell by the voice whether it was a man or woman? A.—A woman.

Mrs. Carman arrived in court in the custody of Warden Hultz shortly before the proceedings started. She was greeted affectionately by her sister, Mrs. Ida Powell, who came over from Freeport with Dr. Carman.

Mrs. Carman wore the same costume as on the opening day, a blue broadcloth suit of a Russian type, white shirtwaist, white gloves and a fetching little black velvet hat, with a white and black feather.

SAW SAME WOMAN AGAIN AFTER SHOOTING IN OFFICE

George Golder, a man of all work about Freeport, recently discovered witness, identified himself as the man who called at the Carman office at 6 o'clock the evening of June 30. A lady told him to wait and he went to the waiting room and returned to the office at 7:30. There were a man and a woman there—the man was Archie Post.

Q—Did you hear any sounds? A.—Yes, reach of glass and a pistol shot.

Q—Was it dark at that time? A.—Yes, quite dark. I do not remember whether there were any lights in the doctor's office. I knew there were in the waiting room. The street lamps were not lighted.

Q—What did you do when you heard the shots? A.—I went out of the office and looked in three directions.

Q—Did you see any one? A.—No, and then I went back into the house and into the doctor's office.

Golder said that when he went into the office Mrs. Bailey's body was lying on the floor in the southwest corner. Dr. Carman stood some distance away. He went out and examined the window through which the shot was fired. The wire screen was propped out so far that the witness could stand under it without removing his narrow brimmed straw hat.

Golder heard a piano and heard a voice cry: "Stop playing."

Q—Did the playing stop? A.—Yes.

Q—See the little girl? A.—Yes, saw her pass the door going both ways after the playing stopped.

By Mr. Graham:

Q—How long before the shooting was it you saw any person passing the portieres? A.—About two minutes.

A—All in white, going toward the kitchen.

DID NOT SEE FEATURES.

Q—See that person pass back in the other direction? A.—Yes.

Q—Didn't you say to the coroner that this person passed at least five minutes before the shooting? A.—I may have. That was a long time ago.

Q—After the shot was fired who got up first? A.—Post, I think.

The witness told of helping place Mrs. Bailey's body on the couch. He thought he was the first person to see the broken window from the outside.

His testimony was that he had stepped upon the lawn and looked about to see whether there was any one there.

Q—This lady whom you saw passing through the hall you saw later in the doctor's office after the shooting, did you not? A.—Yes.

Q—The colored girl was there while this woman ins white was in the office after the shooting? A.—Yes, sir.

Mr. Smith asked Golder to refresh his memory from the minutes of his testimony before the coroner's jury when he said he believed the woman in white was Mrs. Powell.

Q—Did you see the features of the person who passed the portieres? A.—No.

Q—Just saw she was dressed in white? A.—That's right.

Q—Had you seen this person before? A.—Yes, when I called at the door the first time at 7 o'clock.

Q—When you went to the door the first time the woman was the same from three to five minutes before the murder? A.—Yes.

Q—You say that because she was dressed in white? A.—Yes.

Hazel Combs was recalled when Golder was excused.

Q—You saw the last witness on the stand? A.—Yes.

Q—He was the man who came to the door when you were at the office? A.—Yes.

Q—And it was Mrs. Carman who went to the door when he called? A.—Yes.

Q—You are certain? A.—Yes, I have known Mrs. Carman for years.

Q—How was she dressed? A.—In dark clothes.

Archie Post, the next witness, testified that little Elizabeth Carman let him in when he called at the doctor's office on the evening of June 30.

The New Nemo Corsets

Better Than Ever — Reflect The Season's Figure Changes

Nemos long ago won fame as practical "Self-Reducing Corsets," which gave new figure-control to women with too much flesh. They do so now—and will.

But not all women need reduction; and the Nemo makers have proceeded to make their inventions BEST for ALL women—the slender as well as the stout.

It's a scientific undertaking, carried on by the anatomists, physical culturists, fashion authorities and skilled designers who make up the Nemo Hygienic-Fashion Institute, and whose united efforts produce

The Most Stylish Figure Healthfully

The autumn Nemo models show the newest thought in corsets, a slight nip at back and sides—the "basque" effect; a sure sign that the sloppy "natural figure" is doomed. A little higher in the back, with ample space—the flesh will not "fall over." Long skirt, as before, but the durable Nemo elastic fabrics make it comfortable. The Nemo "bridge," of course; that means free breathing space and no pressure or digging in.

You will enjoy corset comfort and satisfaction if you will let our expert corsetieres fit you in your Nemo 3.00 to 10.00

We guarantee, without restriction, the satisfactory service of every corset we sell—the length of time a corset should wear being left entirely to the judgment of the wearer.

Two Famous Writers Discuss Mrs. Carman

Dorothy Dix Says:

She is cold as an icicle, of imperturbable calm and asture dignity. It is this seething volcano under the snow that piques human imagination.

By DOROTHY DIX.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The epilogue to the tragedy of a woman's jealousy began in the little courtroom at Mineola, when Mrs. Florence Carman was called to the bar, charged with having slain Mrs. Louise Bailey in Dr. Carman's office, on the evening of the thirtieth of last June.

The case has attracted worldwide attention, not only because of the mystery that surrounds it, but because it delves into the psychology of the innermost soul of a woman, and, most of all, because of the strange and dominating personality of the woman who is accused of having committed, through jealousy, a hideous murder. For Mrs. Carman is the last person on earth to whom a crime passionate would seem possible.

APPEARS COLD AS ICICLE.

She is as cold as an icicle apparently; of imperturbable calm and austere dignity, and it is this strange contradiction in human nature, this seething volcano under the snow, that has piqued the popular imagination as it has not been since the days when Evelyn Thaw went on the witness stand and with the face of an angel child told her lurid story of the gutters.

Long before Justice Kelby swept into court in his rustling black silk gown, the courtroom was packed to suffocation and a curious throng beat themselves in vain against the outer doors trying to get in.

First to come were the lawyers, both including District Attorney Smith, and his associate, Mr. Weeks. Then Mr. Bailey, the husband of the murdered woman, who sat with the prosecution to the affected scandal for the defense, who continually described Mr. Bailey as demanding vengeance for the death of his wife. Though Mr. Bailey looks the mildest and meekest of men and the least blustering for gore.

MRS. CARMAN ENTERS.

Then came Surrogate Graham, dapper and debonair and blond, with a shrewd blue eye and a humorous mouth—always a man to be reckoned with who has that combination, especially in a lawsuit, and more especially when he has, as Surrogate Graham has, a wheedling way with him in handling a witness. With him was George Levy, Mrs. Carman's first lawyer, and Dr. Carman.

The months that have passed since Mrs. Bailey was shot in the doctor's office have been strenuous ones for the doctor, and they have told upon him. At the time he was fat and clerkish, with big puffy red cheeks, and he wore a smile that never came off—a sort of Stillson in real life—but anxiety has thinned his face and cut it to a finer line, and wiped the smile off his lips. At the beginning of Summer he had the look of a boy, and that look is gone forever from him.

Then, just as the clock struck ten, Mrs. Carman walked into the room with the jailer and his wife.

She came as if she might be coming to a garden party, her step free and easy, her face sunlighted by her eyes bright and alert.

BEAUTIFULLY DRESSED.

She was beautifully dressed and most appropriately, in a handsome dark blue coat suit, worn with a dainty lingerie blouse. Her hair was immaculately marcelled, and surrounding it was a mannish black velvet hat, trimmed with an upstanding black and white ostrich plume. She wore white gloves, which she never removed during the whole day's session.

There is just one word that to me, sums up my impression of Mrs. Carman. It is the word "distinguished." She is just that. She would be distinguished looking in any assemblage, a woman that you would instinctively notice and inquire who she was. She is tall, with a superb figure, and a regal carriage.

She looks as a duchess ought to look, and generally doesn't. She is no longer young. She is forty-five, but she has an Autumnal beauty that makes a twenty-year-old girl look like bread and butter. She is always exquisitely dressed.

You can't imagine her dowdy, or untidy, or even having on the wrong thing, and her manners are as refined as her personal appearance. She is so emphatically the lady, so reserved, so well bred that it makes the charge of murder against her seem so incongruous a thing.

AGONY UNSPEAKABLE.

To such a woman as she is, whether she be innocent or guilty, to be dragged through the horror of a murder trial must be agony unspeakable. The shame of it must burn through every quivering nerve in her body, and yet if Mrs. Carman felt this she gave no sign of it. The most callous and indifferent spectator in the room was not less concerned than she was, apparently.

She listened with intelligent interest to the proceedings, and smiled a quick, responsive smile to the little witty sallies that her lawyer made or at the trivial humor of the courtroom. If remorse ate at her heart, if fear clutched at her very vitals, if humiliation bowed her head in the dust, there was no evidence of it.

And this woman, who can command herself so perfectly, is the woman described in the typical sex swept away with jealousy that she spied upon her husband and had a vulgar fight with the woman to whom she saw him give money, and who kissed him! There is your paradox of femininity!

Detective Burns looms large in the prosecution, and Surrogate Graham tried to dim the lustre of the great sleuth all he could by referring to him as a writer, a lecturer, a moving picture man, and also sometimes a detective.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

To the average mind the fact that Mrs. Carman violated the secrecy of a doctor's office, which should be as sacred as the confessional, has been one of the blackest and most unanswerable charges against her.

Mrs. Carman is secretary of the Woman Suffrage Association of Freeport, and I thought she smiled on the emphatic "No" at one question that Prosecutor Smith put to every salesman, and that was: "Will you condemn a woman for a crime as quickly as you will a man? And do you believe in equal justice between the sexes?"

And they all agreed that when it came to being punished, a woman was a man's equal in the eyes of the law, even if she wasn't on any other occasion.

BATTLE IN EARNEST.

Today the battle is on in earnest for Mrs. Carman's life.

Certainly, sympathy in the community is with Mrs. Carman. As far as I can make out the sentiment of that portion of Long Island, especially among the women, is that, in the first place, they don't believe that the prosecution can prove the crime on her, and in the second place if she did commit the crime, a man hasn't any business making his wife jealous anyway. So there.

Which may not be logical, but it's strictly human.

Breese to Appear With Julia Arthur

Edmund Breese, the actor, is going to play the part of the sergeant in the benefit performance of "Mercedes," in which Mrs. Benjamin P. Cheney, known to playgoers as Julia Arthur, will make her return to the stage in aid of the European Actors' Relief Fund.

The sergeant is a small part. It is practically a one-line role. But Breese, when the board that Mrs. Cheney wished him to appear in the performance, he did not like to offer his the meagre role, said:

"You tell Mrs. Cheney that I'll do anything to help this performance—I'll carry a spear if she wants me to."

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a mere digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Craig Kennedy Says:

(Arthur B. Reeve)

The case of a woman rising to a height of passion ordinarily associated with the stage or fiction.

By Arthur B. Reeve,

Author of the Famous Craig Kennedy scientific detective stories in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

What is it that makes the Carman case a cause celebre, dividing the first page headlines with the world war?

It is full of thrills, not only for the crowds who flock to the quaint little courthouse at Mineola to see the sequel to the tragedy of Freeport, but for that vast audience of readers who are never absent, any editor for "human interest."

What is the secret? It is that here we have to deal with the basic psychological reason for the very existence of these fiction detective stories. Here we deal with a fact story more marvelous than any fiction.

This trial is the third act of a great drama. It is romance, it is mystery made flesh and blood.

Before I attempt a little thumbnail sketch of the scene, let me let me repeat what I said after my visit to Freeport for the AMERICAN last July. Above all stands out the fatal planning and lack of energy shown by the Freeport authorities at the start. I shall revert to that in a moment.

Now let me say that if it was bungled at the start it is not so now. In the face of the great mystery every one connected with it seems to have risen to the occasion. As I sat in the courtroom I could not help feeling that there were men there connected with this case of whom we shall hear much in the future.

ELOQUENCE IN BATTLE BETWEEN TWO COUNSEL.

District Attorney Smith had scarcely begun his opening address when it became evident that he had marshalled the evidence in the most impressive manner. And at each step developed John J. Granam, Mrs. Carman's chief counsel, fought it inch by inch.

On the one side they are making the most of every trifling scrap of circumstantial evidence; on the other they are raising every one of a host of possible reasonable doubts.

As our circumstantial evidence, much feared by some people, let it be said that witnesses may lie quite as readily as circumstances.

The scene of this great drama is laid in a small courtroom with bright white walls and glossy new oak panels—all thoroughly modern. The room is crowded, not only with men, but with perhaps two score of more women.

It is not the stage setting, nor even entirely the play, as much as it is the actors who count.

Foremost, of course, is Mrs. Carman herself. There was not a woman in the audience but kept her eyes glued on Mrs. Carman. Men were weighing the evidence; women were weighing the defendant. For it is sure since a woman of Mrs. Carman's calibre —of her beauty, mentality and social station—has been put on trial for her life.

There she sat at the head of the long table, looking down at opposing counsel, with the judge before her and the jury which is to decide her fate almost within arm's length.

Small wonder, then, if there was evident beneath her firm control, which everyone had noted and commented on, a tension, a suppressed nervousness, which kept her moistening her lips ever so slightly, as if to escape the eye of her woman watchers. Above all she must keep her marvellous poise.

Later she showed much more animation, leaning forward, full of interest in the absorbing game to the door leading to the waiting room," was asked.

A ruler, a moment's calculation, answered.

"Sixteen feet."

It would have delighted the exact soul of Bertillon, who revelled in such minute devices.

More science appeared with the dictagraph. But of that later.

Still another dramatic situation was created by the District Attorney when he introduced Elizabeth Varasso, the nurse, who asserted that Mrs. Carman had rapped at the window—the same window through which later came the fatal shot at Mrs. Bailey—to let it be known that she saw money passing between Dr. Carman and herself. When she told how Mrs. Carman slapped her face and the doctor, it was there just a bit of quiet revenge for an insult from a jealous woman?

Some new things came out during the evidence as, for instance, when Miss Hazel Combs testified that Mrs. Carman was downstairs between the time of supper and the shooting. I believe Mrs. Carman has always contended she never upstairs and stayed there until after the shot was fired.

There was another momentary thrill when it was established by the doctors, from the necropsy, that Mrs. Bailey was in a delicate condition. That reminds one of the serious bungling at the start. Has it ever been established what the medicine was that Dr. Carman alleges he prescribed for Mrs. Bailey?

As for the other witnesses, Gelder was hopeless. If he had been even an average observer his testimony might go far toward solving the case. Archie Post was led into making a fine foundation for attacking Farrell tomorrow.

WHAT DID MRS. CARMAN HEAR OVER DICTAGRAPH?

Now for the dictagraph, the little mechanical eavesdropper whom counsel for the defence affect to scorn one moment, and then show their fear of the next. Never has the dictagraph been in a case of even a drama or fiction for her very life. It was especially evident when the dictograph evidence was being introduced and tilted over. She was playing the game, matching her counsel's keenness and her own native woman's wit against all the cards that the attorney for the people could lay down on the table.

Mrs. Carman is the type you will see on the electric trains from nearby suburban Long Island rolling into town in the late morning, after the rush of men folk to business, the type that comes into town to shop, to chat a few moments in a tea room, perhaps run in to a matinee, then back home for a dance or a theatre that night in the home of some friend of her "set."

It is the case of a woman, somewhat above the average, rising to a height of passion that ordinarily one associates only with the stage and fiction. Here might be the story of thousands of other women.

AMAZING SELF CONTROL SHOWN BY DEFENDANT.

And she has risen to the height. Time and again she showed it in her amazing self control. When the nurse, Elizabeth Varasso, testified, and again when the dictagraph wrangle was going on, Mrs. Carman listened and watched without so much as a blush of color or a flutter of an eyelash. Not so Dr. Carman.

The doctor, too, is an interesting actor, steady, even stout, affecting purple socks and a white waistcoat. His, too, is an inscrutability that shows he has felt the gravity of the occasion and has risen to it.

Another commanding figure is John J. Graham, Mrs. Carman's attorney, sitting next to Mrs. Carman and Dr. Carman, alert, full of nerve force, directing the defence, but often deferring, with a nod, to Mrs. Carman's instinct.

For the people, the central figure is District Attorney Smith. As a writer of detective stories, I must say that Mr. Smith has skilfully mingled the scientific detection of crime with the heart throbs. The first heart throb came with the very opening of the trial, the story of the heartbroken old lady, Mrs. Burgess, who had lost her only daughter.

A few moments later the versatile prosecutor had come close to the scientific. To show the thoroughness in which Mr. Smith has prepared his case, there were introduced by a civil engineer plans of the house and grounds at Freeport, drawn to scale.

"How far is it from the most northerly window of the office what is sealed in the minds of the three principal actors, one of whom is dead. Celia Coleman is the key.

FATE OF MRS. CARMAN HANGS ON GIRL'S STORY!

Will the jury believe her? How will they balance the visits of Mr. Levy, Mrs. Carman's original counsel, the morning after the shooting and before Mrs. Carman was suspected and the statements he succeeded in getting from the servant against the alleged "kidnaping" by Mr. Burns and the story which Celia Coleman now says is the truth? One thing we may be sure of—a vitriolic attack on Mr. Burns. Vitriol is sometimes dangerous in the careless handling thereof.

Solid Citizens

—will find the solution of their clothes problems at this Live Store where the fitting of hard-to-fit men is a specialty.

No other store in Boston carries so many suits in extra sizes and unusual proportions as we do. It's not alone the stout men, but the semi-stout, the short, the tall and the extra tall that will find clothes especially designed for them here. And a good variety to select from, too.

Besides, we have the "Foreward," a Kuppenheimer model for stoop-shouldered men, desk workers and men who carry their heads forward. This model is not to be found elsewhere in Boston.

And another thing—we don't penalize these hard-to-fit men. The price range for them is the same as for the great rank and file of "Regulars" who come here for Good Clothes and their money's worth.

CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK CHILDREN NEED "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

A coated tongue means sluggish liver and bowels—Listen mother!

Your child isn't naturally cross and feverish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, bad breath, throat sore, stomach sour, tongue coated, or has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a teaspoonful and in just a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food, clogged in the bowels, passes out of the system and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless fruit laxative and it never fails to sweeten a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Mother, keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups. You must say "California Syrup of Figs" or you may get an imitation sold to disappoint you.—ADVERTISEMENT.

FINAL MAKEUP OF SQUAD TO DEFEND HARVARD IN BIG GAMES STILL IN DOUBT

LANGFORD SCORES QUICK VICTORY OVER GUNBOAT IN TITLE BOUT AT ARENA

GUNBOAT BATTERED OUT OF COMMISSION

By RILEY.

Another "champion" battered out of business in Boston.

"Gunboat" Smith came here, accepted as the best of the "white hopes" and considered by many of the experts as the champion heavyweight of the U. S. A. Forget the "Gunboat." Since his meeting with Sam Langford at Boston Arena last night the "Gunboat" is done.

The "Gunboat" lasted less than three rounds with the Cambridge "Tar Baby." In the parlance of the ring, he "lay down like a dog." Like Connie Mack, he was beaten before the fight began.

Smith looked scared when he entered the ring. He looked more scared after a minute's scrapping when "Ho Ho" Sam put him on the floor with a right punch to the ear. He seemed to collapse with fear when Langford floored him twice in the second round and he was saved from a knockout by the gong. And he was so panic stricken when Sam laid him low in the middle of the third round that he never even attempted to rise from the padded floor this time.

In fact, "Gunboat" Smith was looking for a soft place to lay his weary head from the beginning, when Langford's right rocked him almost to sleep, until the finish when he found the last long resting place of his championship hopes up against the ropes.

There were about 6,000 spectators at the ringside. The seats cost them from $2 to $5 each. Standing room was selling at $2 per copy before the bout began. The "house" must have amounted to about $14,000 or $15,000. It is said that Langford and Smith each received about $4,000 for the seven and a fraction minutes they performed in the arena.

If standing in a twenty-four-foot enclosure for seven and a fraction minutes, facing a black terror whom you expect is going to knock your head off and who all but does the same several times is "easy money." Smith got his $500-odd-a-minute very easily. He walked to his corner, unassisted, after the referee had counted ten and thereby relieved him from further fear of the Wrath of Cambridge. He seemed not to have a mark on him.

As for Langford, he made his $500-odd-a-minute easier than John D. gets his.

THE PINK AGAINST THE BLACK.

"Gunboat" Smith was as pink as a new-born babe when he shed his Chinese green bathrobe and conferred with his huskies before the bout. He was lank and bony and—obviously scared. Opposite him sat Langford, four inches shorter, almost chunky, black as tar, and with rolls of fat on his abdomen protruding from beneath his green silk kimono.

They were a study in color when they started hostilities, Smith growing pinker all the time and Sambo evidently growing blacker in the haze of tobacco smoke, until you could just see the whites of his eyes and his white teeth shining through the fog.

Langford had Smith down on his hands and knees with a right smash in the left ear. Smith stayed down for the count of nine, then arose and pestered Sambo with a staccato of arm's length left jabs for the rest of the round.

In the second round Smith started off with a smashing right hand jab that jarred Sam a bit. After that the "Gunboat" kept at a respectful distance from the colored boy. Finally, however, thinking that he had an opportunity, he ran squarely into a left hook on the jaw and dropped to his knees for the count of nine. He was barely on his feet when Langford cut loose right and left and put him down again.

SAVED BY THE GONG.

As Referee McGuigan counted five, the gong sounded and one of Smith's seconds rushed into the ring and carried the reeling "Gunboat" to his corner.

Smith seemed to come back fresh in the third, indicating that he was probably about as much terrorized as hurt.

"Dance around him, Smith," yelled the "Gunboat's" friends. And Smith did, while Sam crouched in the centre of the ring, awaiting a chance to put over a finishing blow.

"Cut loose your siege guns, Sam," shouted one of Langford's backers. At which Sam cut loose not one but the whole battery. He clipped Smith in the abdomen with a "Busy Bertha" and a "Jack Johnson" from his right, swinging the blow in short and hard, and then, shifting like a flash to the face, handed Smith a .42 centimetre wallop square on the left ear.

The "Gunboat" went down with all sails set. He kneeled on the mat, with one hand on the rope, until the count of ten, then arose and walked feebly to his corner—more like a man in fear of sudden death than a man shattered by a knock-out blow.

Langford was a two-to-one favorite. The boys who took the short end on Smith never got even a run for their money. Smith is not in Langford's class. That fight between them at the Arena a year ago must have been an awful fake or Langford must have been wretchedly sick at the time.

Joe Eagan defeated "Young" Jasper in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Patsy LeLucca stopped "Kid" Mercier in three rounds, while Johnny Murphy won from Joe Sousa.

HOW SAM LANGFORD WON BATTLE IN 3 ROUNDS FROM GUNBOAT SMITH

The men were called to the centre of the ring by Referee Jack McGuigan and given final instructions. It was then announced that they would box under straight Marquis of Queensbury rules, protect themselves at all times and break clean at the call of the referee. The bell then sounded and the battle began.

FIRST ROUND—Langford rushed from his corner with "red" in his eyes. He slashed out with left and right-hand punches but failed to land. The men then clinched.

Smith scored with a light left jab, but Sam would not be denied and sent crashing left and right-hand punches to Smith's jaw.

The "Bone Crusher" rushed to close quarters and landed a hard right-hand blow back of the gunner's left ear. The white man went to the mat and took the count of nine.

Smith jabbed and ran away. He was a beaten man and tried to keep out of Sam's way. Langford clinched and after the break scored with solid left and right-hand smashes which rocked Smith.

The "Tar Baby" rushed Smith into a corner and sent a left-hand blow to his opponent's stomach. Smith jabbed with his left as the bell sounded.

SECOND ROUND—Smith was white when he left his corner. He jabbed with his left and started to box at long range. Langford rushed to close quarters and sent Smith's head back with deadly left and right-hand punches.

Smith jabbed with his left and followed with another left-hand blow and a hard right-hand wallop. It was the first real fighting Smith had done since the contest started.

The men clinched and after the break Smith scored with left and right-hand blows. Langford merely shook his head. He realized that it was his fight and he was waiting to end the contest with a few well-directed blows.

The "Bone Crusher" rocked Smith with three left-hand punches. The gunner jabbed lightly with his left.

Sam landed a sweet left jab to Smith's head. The gunner rushed forward and as he did so Langford hooked his left to his jaw and Smith went down for the count of nine.

When he got up again he was all in and was knocked to the mat with a straight left-hand punch.

Smith was out, but the bell saved him. It was necessary to assist the gunner to his corner.

Langford's round.

THIRD ROUND—Langford started to fight like a panther in this round. It was evident that the "Gunboat" was doomed to bow to the "Human Submarine."

Smith jabbed three times with his left and crossed one right-hand blow to Langford's jaw, but his punches lacked force. Sam rushed in close and scored with hard left and right-hand blows to the jaw.

The gunner sent Sam's head back with a left to the jaw, but took in return solid left and right-hand smashes to the jaw. Smith kept running away and landed two left-hand punches.

The men clinched and Sam scored several short blows to the body. Langford rushed Smith and landed a solid right-hand punch on the white man's kidneys. He followed this with a right-hand blow back of Smith's left ear.

The American white heavyweight champion fell to the mat and was counted out by Referee McGuigan.

Langford's round.

Mrs. Evers' Mother Passes Away in Troy

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Mrs. James Fitzgibbons, mother of Mrs. John J. Evers, wife of the captain of the world's champion Boston team, is dead at St. Joseph's Maternity Hospital.

Mrs. Fitzgibbons was born in this city forty-nine years ago. Walter Maranville, shortstop of the Boston team, who came to Troy to attend the Evers celebration Monday night, remains in Troy for the funeral Friday morning.

Bob Bingham's Hip Bone Splintered

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 21.—Robert S. Bingham, captain of the Yale freshman football team and a brother of "Bill" Bingham of Harvard, left the Exeter Hospital today for his home in Lawrence, Mass.

Bingham was carried off the field in the last period of Saturday's Exeter-Yale '18 game with what was thought at the time to be a dislocated hip. An X-ray of the bone showed it to be only slightly splintered, however, and although the injury is very painful, it is not serious.

Harvard Meet First on Tech's New Field

Tech's new athletic field in Cambridge will see its first competition on Saturday, when Tech meets Harvard in a practice track meet. Owing to the condition of the grounds, it is impossible at present to tell just what field events will be held.

It is practically assured that the hammer and shot will be on the program, but the jumping pits have not been built as yet, and it is doubtful if the work on them can be completed by Saturday.

CITY LEAGUE BOWLERS ROLL FOR 2D PLACE

By J. P. MURPHY.

BOYLSTON and Carruth will try to settle the possession of second place in the City League when they meet tonight for the first time this season at the Carruth alleys. While Boylston has a point on Carruth towards its claim for the position, the latter, in turn, has a slightly better pinfall than Jack Sheafe's quintet, and will also have an advantage in rolling at home. On paper, however, they appear to be evenly matched.

Christopher will not be in the Carruth lineup. The Hanover street team will be the same as last week, Rouse going to Christopher's place at anchor, while Frank Collyer will fill in Rouse's position as leadoff man.

* * *

WHILE Carruth and Boylston are engaged in battle, the Adams Square team will entertain Chauncy and try to upset the championship calculations of Bill Beatty's aggregation. No team has been able to complete this trick so far this season.

The third league set-to of the evening will bring together Casino and Murray at the South End lanes.

* * *

COMING down to the "ifs," it is possible, though not probable, for Boylston to move into the lead, provided it takes all four points from Carruth and Adams Square hands out the same dose to Chauncy.

* * *

LYNN and Quincy have dropped out of the Greater Boston Y. M. C. A. League because of the length of the schedule, and the B. & M. branch of the Boston Y. M. C. A. has supplanted Somerville. This shift will make the season schedule shorter by eight weeks.

* * *

A BREAK is looked for in the ties for first, third and sixth place in the Newton bottlepin series when the teams meet in their third set of matches this evening. Maugus and North Gate, joint holders of first place, and Arlington Boat Club, one of the three contenders for third place, are expected to creep away from the others, as they have been bowling head and shoulders over the rest to date. Newtowne is also looked to move up a peg or two.

* * *

NOT content with rolling their regular matches, quite a few bowlers in the Automobile League remain around for hours after their meetings at the Chauncy alleys settling questions of the comparative rolling strength of certain members. They're certainly "bugs" over the game.

* * *

JOE PIOTTI, one of the best rollers in the Furniture League, is finding Horne an unusually strong competitor for the individual prize this season. Horne's present average of 97 is two points better than Piotti's.

* * *

IT is quite noticeable that the leagues are slow in getting started this season. The evening schedules, in many cases, are lean compared with those of last year.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THE baseball season is over, the players have returned to their homes or are doing vaudeville turns and the ball parks are being marked for football. The 1914 baseball curtain has been rung down.

Yet baseball talk never ends. There is much baseball activity in the cold months and there promises to be unusual activity between now and the opening of the 1915 season. Baseball needs a rest, but it will not be allowed to sleep. The Winter will be full of more or less hysterical doings.

THE appointment of new managers, the signing and jumping of players, the Baseball Players' Fraternity which is formulating new demands of the club owners, the actual and threatened inroads of the Federal League on Organized Baseball will make the coming months busy ones, especially for the magnates.

In the months to come the magnates have their inning. There will be much talk from the club owners. There will be much interviewing on the part of the reporters.

WILL they drag Stallings before the footlights? He declared just before he left Boston that he had turned down a big offer, but when he got to New York the vaudeville agents kept after him and doubtless increased their offers to such a sum that the big chief had to pay attention to them.

Stallings has only his salary as manager of the Braves. He has said that his plantation in Georgia has cost him more than he has ever taken out of it. Early last Summer he said: "For the first time in many years I am going to have a banner cotton crop. Looks as though I would be able to make up some of my losses in previous years."

Then came the European war and the cotton market was ruined.

WITH his mind centred on winning the National League pennant and the World's Series, Stallings had no time to give to cotton. But he knows that things are in a chaotic condition down on his Georgia plantation. With several hundred negroes to be taken care of, Stallings realized, just before leaving Boston, that he was "up against it."

Doubtless he feels that by earning some money on the stage he can ease the situation on his plantation not a little. So if he takes the jump it will be for the sake of his plantation and those who are dependent on it for a living, rather than because he is enamored of the idea.

IT seems to be taken for granted that Hank O'Day has lost his job as manager of the Cubs. Hank was a good umpire, but he had managerial aspirations. When the opportunity opened he succeeded Griffith as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

Although he did fairly well with that club, finishing well up in the race, he was canned by the management for some reason best known to itself.

Hank went back to umpiring, but his heart was not in his work. He longed for what he called "vindication," so when the "late" Charles Webb Murphy offered him Evers' job as manager of the Cubs about ten months ago he took it with feverish haste.

HANK kept the Cubs in the running most of the year and his team had a chance to win the pennant up to the last two or three weeks of play. But the owners seem to be dissatisfied and the "dope" is that Hank is to go.

HANK may resume the business of guessing at balls and strikes at which he was quite expert—much more so than he was at guessing on the result of the World's Series. Hank declared that the Braves wouldn't win a game from the Athletics, a prediction that was only equalled by the Detroit newspaper man who said that the Braves wouldn't be able to get the side out when they tackled the Mackmen.

Save Money and Travel Comfortably to California

There's a best way to travel, just as there's a best way to do everything. Why go to a strange country without a guide when, for no more money, but at a great saving, you can go on one of our "Personally Conducted" Parties.

In this way you have good company all the way, as the parties are made up of congenial people. We are particular about "choosing our guests." And then our own special conductor goes with you, all the way.

The courteous service and attention given you by this special guide, enables you to learn more of the country than you could do traveling alone, and he relieves you of all the care and worry about luggage, and other travel details. This extra service costs you nothing. Why not have it?

Call or write and let me tell you about the "Personally Conducted," low fare parties to California that have helped to make the "Burlington Route" service famous.

Cox Filly Picked to Win $5,000 Stake

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 21.—The veteran "Pop" Geers was the star driver of the opening of the Great Western circuit, winning the $2,500 for 2:15 pacers in straight heats.

The surprise was the defeat of Omar in the 2:06 trot by Tommy Horn. The track was in very bad condition from heavy rains.

The $5,000 stake for 2:14 trotters is on the card for today. The Cox filly Margaret Druien is a strong favorite.

CAMP RECALLS SOME LAPSES OF GOLFERS

Written for the Boston American.

By WALTER CAMP.

The extraordinary lapses which come to even the best of golfers should be a matter of great encouragement to the average player.

Probably the most striking of these lapses was one which occurred to Barry, the St. Andrew's player, who won the British amateur championship at Prestwick several years ago. The youth was then but twenty years of age and he played through this tournament in brilliant fashion, putting out supposed favorites right and left.

Maxwell, the one most counted upon, he put out after a stirring battle and then defeated Hon. Osmund Scott in the finals.

COULDN'T WIN OR HALVE A HOLE.

A short time after this Barry was playing No. 1 on his university team in an inter-university match. The contest was for eighteen holes and Barry won the first six holes, thus having his man 8 down with 10 to go, but he neither won nor halved another hole throughout the match.

Jerome Travers, one of the best match players in this country, and a four-time winner, when he met Ouimet in the finals at Ekwanok, lost seven holes straight, being 1 up at the seventeenth in the morning, then losing the seventeenth, eighteenth, first, second, third, fourth and fifth.

True, Ouimet was playing a splendid game, but even Ouimet, the winner of the open championship over here, and now the winner of the amateur championship, cannot himself be sure from lapses, as the following sentence which summed up his play in the British open indicates:

"The American open champion, Mr. F. J. Ouimet, was never dangerous and finished fifty-fifth with 332."

And, after all, the spit ball is rapidly going the way of most new-fangled methods when they outgrow their temporary vogue.

But this particular ball is not being abandoned principally because batsmen have been able to diagnose and hit it, but because it is hard on the pitcher's arm, and also sometimes results in errors by the infield.

If, therefore, the pitcher is looking for a continuance of his salary through some years, it seems advisable for him to use this kind of ball, but seldom and certainly not to rely upon it for his effectiveness. Else, as did Walsh, a magnificent physical specimen, he may regret it.

All those who remember the prowess of our former Treasurer of the United States, Lee McClung, while he was an undergraduate at Yale, and captain of the football team and baseball nine, greatly regret that he is ill of typhoid fever in London.

Lee McClung was one of the most remarkable athletes that Yale ever developed, and two years ago he gave a dinner to his football team in New York and the men who sat about that round table looked almost as well prepared after twenty years of work in the outside world to have a turn with the pigskin as when they trod the gridiron in their more youthful days.

BASEBALL PEACE PLANS BEING CARRIED ON WITHOUT CONSULTING BAN JOHNSON

HARVARD WORKS ON REBUILDING OF BACKFIELD

By NICK FLATLEY.

There's nothing definite yet as to the final makeup of the Harvard eleven and the coaches are still far from satisfied with the manner in which the men on the line have been playing.

This was clearly shown yesterday by the surprising shift which brought Soucy from centre out to end and reduced Weatherhead back to the second team.

The former centre, who has had the advantage of a year's varsity experience, did fairly well there at the wing yesterday, considering the fact that he has had no workout for a long time except in the middle of the line, and will be given plenty of chance to develop before he is finally placed.

Wallace, the new centre, who first came into real prominence in the Tufts game last Saturday, is a slightly heavier player than Soucy and equally as fast, and if the former can work up the requisite speed to hold down his new assignment, the line will have a lot of added power.

Coolidge seems fairly sure of hanging onto one of the end positions, and if the new change still leaves the coaches unsatisfied, chances are "Tacks" Hardwick will be moved in, as with both Bradlee and Rollins showing good form in the backfield, the big fellow can be spared.

Again today the Canadians, who have been working out with the team for the past two days, will line up against the varsity and continue springing the open plays that are their forte. The way they have succeeded in baffling the regulars thus far has disappointed the Crimson coaches greatly.

The instructors were beginning to feel that they have hammered enough defensive knowledge into the squad to make it almost airtight against all kinds of attacks, but now the idea has been given a body blow.

This principally was the reason of yesterday's shift, and it will occasion no surprise whatever to see a few more of the veterans changed around in the course of the next couple of days.

Leo Leary has personal charge of Soucy and will work the crew man overtime to try and initiate him into all the mysteries of the outside job.

It is evident that Harvard fears Yale—or rather has a whole lot more respect for the big Blue team than has been the case for a number of seasons.

The fact that Frank Hinkey has brought back the old Yale fighting spirit and has filled the New Haven contingent with hope again, is one reason. And the other is the intricate new game that the Eli director has worked out.

All hands at Cambridge are waiting with much interest the clash of the Yale and Washington and Jefferson elevens Saturday. The little fellows, in a football sense, gave Harvard a mighty tough rub, and it will at least be somewhat enlightening to observe what they can do against the more advanced Yale attack and defence.

Yale will have practically the regular lineup in the game and the first really worth while basis of comparison of the big rivals will be secured to delight the souls of the experts.

The Cambridge second team in the scrimmaging will continue to use lateral, forward and criss-cross passes with great frequency.

It was this form of attack that enabled Yale to wipe the field with Notre Dame last Saturday, and with a lightning fast backfield it will doubtless be the Eli policy throughout the season.

Practically all the Crimson regulars are back for the daily practice, though Logan, Mahan and Trumbull will not be worked very hard for some time yet. Nevertheless, the first string contingent is being drilled, both in offence and defence to meet a fast open game.

All the games left on the Harvard schedule will require a very alert defence, and the regular coaches, as well as extras, who are beginning to rally round, are busy at work getting such a protective system to working in proper fashion.

The attack, too, is gradually being worked along more open lines, and the annual stock of trick plays now form a principal part of the daily lecture course.

This afternoon the team will be put through a fairly hard scrimmage, another will be in order tomorrow, while Friday will be a day of light work, mostly signal practice, to have all fit and ready for the fast Penn State aggregation which invades the sacred Stadium Saturday.

Captain Brickley, who is recovering rapidly from the effects of his recent operation, will be out on the field, starting next week, and will take over the work of coaching the kickers.

Cambridge Club Out with Card of Bouts

The finish fight between the Cambridge police and boxing promoters will be resumed tomorrow evening when a show will be held at the University A. C.

The management of the club announces that three ten-round bouts will be staged. The complete card is as follows: Joe Phillips of Providence vs. Harry Dillon of New York, Billy Corrigan of Cambridge vs. Eddie Flynn of Lynn and Patsy Green of Cambridge vs. Howard McRae of Cambridge.

Boost for Watson.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 21.—Harry Watson of this town captain of Rochester eleven at Williams College, is coaching the University of Rochester eleven at Rochester, N. Y., this Fall and, according to reports, he is developing a strong team.

College Football

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21.—Dartmouth had a foretaste of the Princeton game when the freshmen were brought over from the west field for the longest and hardest scrimmage of the year, ending when even the painted ball was hard to see. In addition former Coach Bill Randall made his annual appearance to help put on the finishing touches, and Robbie, the college old clothes man, started offering his assistance to undergraduates desirous of following the team to Princeton. Dartmouth had very little on the freshmen in straight football, but by new formations in open play ran up four touchdowns, made by Spears and Pudrith, a placement kick from the 31-yard line by the latter and a drop kick from the 25-yard line by Tuck brought the total up to 34 points for the varsity. All the alleged cripples except Curtis made a sudden appearance and played through the scrimmage.

• • •

PRINCETON, Oct. 21.—Over an hour of signals, followed by an hour of scrimmage, left the Princeton players a tired crew. Their work was good at the outset of the mixup, but they soon showed the tiring effects of the long and strenuous preliminary drill. The varsity scored twice against the scrubs and in turn was scored on by the second string men. Nourse, who has been on the sick list for two weeks, was out for the first time. He has lost a lot by his absence and will have to work unusually hard to gain his place at centre from Trenkert and Haviland. Eberstadt, who has been absent the same length of time as Nourse, also has lost considerably in the fortnight and he will have a hard task to get back at quarter.

• • •

ITHACA, Oct. 21.—While a mixed varsity team beat the scrub team by three touchdowns in scrimmage at Alumni Field, a good share of the Cornell regulars practiced in another part of the field, developing the forward pass and working up a strong defence against this play. The Cornell coaches are impressing upon the players the fact that they must expect from Brown a fast and open game, and the backfield especially has been warned to keep ever on the alert. The decision to keep Shuler at left halfback permanently will increase Cornell's secondary defence, as Shuler has proved one of the most vigorous tackles on the defence in the Cornell squad. Barrett, Shuler, Collyer, Hill, [illegible], O'Hearn, Shelton and Lautz worked for a long time at the forward pass plays and it seemed that the passes were being handled with more accuracy than has been the case heretofore.

• • •

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 21.—An easy workout was the order for the Williams veterans again, although a good hard scrimmage was expected. The veterans probably will make up today by battling with the freshman eleven. Tooand and Brown were not in the line and their absence necessitated a shift. Captain Payson took Toolan's place at left half and Tomkins filled the fullback position. Furness switched from left tackle to centre and Welch had a chance at tackle. A signal drill with two combinations of regulars lasted for a half hour. A number of new formations to be used against Trinity are being tried out.

• • •

WEST POINT, Oct. 21.—The Army coaches were unable to get a great deal out of the varsity team, in spite of a long driving scrimmage against the scrubs. Playing for more than three-quarters of an hour without a letup, the first string was able to score only once, Ford going through for the touchdown after the varsity had advanced from the 20-yard mark to the 5-yard line on straight football. Herrick's good work at guard continues and the line looked strong today despite the absence of McEwan, Weyand and Merrilat. Both Weems and Goodman were used again at centre and Parker got a tryout on the varsity at tackle in Weyand's place.

• • •

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 21.—Back to first principles was the rule in Lehigh's camp. In alternate squads the tackles and guards and ends and backfield men were put through their paces on the tackling dummy and the "putting out the man" machine. So much time was taken up in this style of work and the signal practice which followed that there was no time for a scrimmage. Tomorrow, however, will find a battle royal on, as this week will go far toward deciding the future line positions. The team has lost the services of big Frank Green for a week or two, possibly for the season. Green is believed to be suffering from a slight concussion of the brain from a hard knock received in the Yale game. His position was taken today by Ostrum.

• • •

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Penn State's followers are clamoring for a victory over Harvard Saturday. None of the four teams met thus far has even extended State. The team will enter the stadium with the record of being the only Eastern college with the exception of Brown that has not been scored upon this season. Westminster, Muhlenberg, Gettysburg and Ursinus, all formidable opponents, have been held outside State's danger zone. Only once has the ball been inside the 35-yard line.

• • •

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 21.—Head Coach Frank Hinkey put two Yale varsity football teams through a stiff scrimmage with the scrubs with the result that the offensive play of the regulars shows a decided improvement. Ainsworth, Knowles and Legore were not sent into the scrimmage, for Legore is suffering from a slight injury to one shoulder and the coaches want to save the other two men for the hard work ahead in the Washington and Jefferson game Saturday. Roberts, a promising halfback, is out of the game for the season with a strained tendon over his shoulder.

• • •

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 21.—In an hour's scrimmage against a strong scrub team reinforced by some of the graduate coaches the Brown varsity eleven scored four touchdowns. With Cornell plays in use almost incessantly the scrubs gained ground, but were unable to get within the danger zone, twice being turned back when twenty yards from the goal line. Coaches Robinson, Sprackling and Whittemore directed the new plays which will be used for the first time on Saturday against Cornell at the Polo Grounds. The coaches decided to give Ormsby, left end, a day of rest, and he and Andrews, who was injured in the game against Wesleyan last week, were not in uniform.

MOTOR NOTES.

By. J. C. KERRISON.

The Mohawk Trail, undoubtedly the greatest scenic automobile route in this country, extending over one of the highest mountain ranges in this part of the country for a distance of eighteen miles, under construction by the Massachusetts State Highway Commission for the past two years, and costing over $500,000, will be formally dedicated tomorrow.

Many noted men will take part in the exercises, including Governor Walsh, Ex-Governor Foss, Ex-Governor Crane, Congressman Treadway, President Garfield of Williams College and others. Hon. George P. Lawrence will be master of ceremonies.

• • •

E. P. Chalfant, who at one time was general manager of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, has become secretary of the Electrical Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, comprising a group of electric pleasure car makers, and will establish association headquarters in either Chicago or Cleveland.

• • •

W. R. McCulla, formerly research engineer of the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit, has joined his "side partner," Frank Trego, who was also in the Packard engineering corps, but is now assistant general manager of the Knox Motors Company of Springfield. McCulla will be in charge of all experimental work and will act as assistant to Trego.

W. J. Walker, manager of the New England branch of the Harley-Davidson Motor Company, has returned from Chicago, where he has been attending the big motor cycle show. He was so impressed with the show that he decided to bring part of it back with him, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday he will reproduce at his Boston branch, 74 Huntington avenue, the same "Harley-Davidson" booth and 1915 model machines that were seen last week at the show in Chicago.

Ball Truce On as 'Big Chief' Goes Hunting

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Long-distance telephone wires leading into Chicago were kept hot today and the man who received the calls was Charles Henry Weeghman, president of the Chicago "Feds."

He is the man picked by the Federal League to act as peacemaker, and to meet Garry Herrman, chairman of the National Commission of Baseball, the man chosen by organized baseball to do the talking for that body.

President Weeghman had a dozen magnates on the long-distance telephone. Everyone is said to be pleased with the peace plans. President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox and Ban B. Johnson, president of the American League, are hunting at Comiskey's camp in Wisconsin, cut off from all communication.

It was a brilliant time for President Johnson to disappear when he knew that Garry Herrmann and other officials had gone to New York to meet President Weeghman in a peace conference.

Probabilities are that Johnson may return to Chicago to find that officials of his league had ignored him entirely and signed a peace pact with the Federal League.

President Weeghman admitted today that terms might be offered and accepted at the New York meeting on Friday and Saturday. The public announcement may come at that time. No one has been found who objected to peace terms. Every magnate in both the National and American Leagues, all the officials in the Federal and minor leagues have been calling for peace for months.

They insist they must have protection or they cannot continue. Ban Johnson appears to be the only stumbling block in the way of an absolute settlement satisfactory to all concerned.

Levinsky Has Hard Time Beating Flynn

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Battling Levinsky, who recently outpointed Gunboat Smith at the Manhattan A. C., had the time of his life whipping Jim Flynn at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn.

Flynn, battling like a bulldog all the way, forced Levinsky to come out of his shell and do some real fighting himself. At the end the honors went to Levinsky on points, but Danny Morgan's meal ticket certainly knew that he had been in a fight.

Dundee Beats Azevedo.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 21.—Johnny Dundee was given the decision over Joe Azevedo at the end of a ten-round contest. Dundee was the aggressor throughout.

New Prize Winners from Abroad for Big Dog Show Here

George S. Thomas, the Hamilton dog fancier and importer, has returned from England with ninety-five dogs of various breeds—the largest single consignment of prize winners ever imported into this country.

They are for various owners and a large number will be benched for the first time at the fourth annual show of the Eastern Dog Club, which is to be held in Mechanics Building on November 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Mr. Thomas will be one of the judges at the show, passing on the collies, bulls, Poms, Pekinesans, toy spaniels and Boston, Manchester, Maltese and black and tan terriers.

A highly representative board of judges will pass upon the entries which will close November 2 at the club office, room 18, No. 53 Devonshire street.

Municipal Gym in Jamaica Plain Open

The municipal gymnasium at Jamaica Plain has been opened for the Winter season. Classes under the instruction of Joseph McNamara are held for women and girls on Mondays and Thursdays men on Tuesdays and Fridays, and on Wednesdays and Saturdays for boys. No registration is required.

New Ice Hockey Rules for College Teams This Season

The ice skating season at the Arena will not start until December at the earliest. It has been found that "rushing the season" does not pay.

It is possible that the Arena will secure a former hockey player from McGill University, in Canada, to act as hockey manager the coming season.

Alfred Winsor, coach both of Harvard and the B. A. A., has, with Yale and Princeton, agreed upon a new set of hockey rules for their intercollegiate games.

The revised rules are in the hands of the printers, and they will be sent to other colleges which have hockey teams, with the idea that the others may see fit to play under the same rules.

Welsh and Baldwin to Meet Next Week

Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, and Matty Baldwin have been signed to meet in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Welsh is preparing for the bout in New York, while Baldwin has pitched his training camp in Lynnfield.

Stars of Bike Game Get Busy for Race Here

The first break in the ranks of the six-day riders who are to race here the week of November 2 came today with the report that Oscar Egg, the famous Swiss champion, had been ordered to return to his country for military duty.

Egg is a reservist in the Swiss army. Egg was teamed with Bobby Walthour in the Arena race. George Cameron of New York will probably be substituted for Egg.

Seven teams have been signed up and contracts have been sent to several others and the plans are to have at least a dozen teams represented in the big grind.

Lawrence and Magin are the first to get going on the Newark track, although Madonna and Rudi-Russe were close seconds. The last named pair are working well together, and from all reports they will be among the money winners.

Goullet and Hill, the all-star team, are due to start training tomorrow for the Arena race, although both are great riders over the road and always in condition.

Moran and McNamara are doing light road work, but they plan to take a week's work at the Revere cycle track where they will put on the finishing touches.

Mitten, who is teamed with Anderson, is training on his farm in New Jersey, while the "Big Swede" has taken to the track at Philadelphia and will stay there until a few days before the race here is opened.

Kopsky and Hansen will do their work at the Brighton Beach Oval, but as they have only finished this season's races in a series of road events they will need but little work to put them on edge.

School Notes

Coach Dave Morey of the Somerville High football team is driving his boys to the limit in order to have the team in the best possible shape for the Waltham High game to be played Saturday afternoon. Somerville has been unfortunate this season in not having games arranged and games being cancelled and to date have played but two contests this season. In the game against Melrose High the team did not show well, but since then Morey's team has improved greatly and the red and blue boys may spring a surprise on the Watch City team.

• • •

Several of the Somerville players that have been out of the game on account of injuries are out again in practice and Morey will probably be able to put his entire strength on the field Saturday. Baxter, a guard, who has been suffering from an injured leg, and Murphy, an end, and Hardin, a backfield man, are in shape again to play. Bianchi, the quarterback, is still under the weather, and he is likely to remain on the side line Saturday.

• • •

The fact that Harden is back in the game has bettered the chances of Somerville. Not only is Harden a good offensive player, but he is strong on the defense, and puts a lot of fight into the team.

• • •

Woburn High's cross-country team will be selected from the winners in this afternoon's class meet. About thirty-five boys are expected to toe the mark, and the running is expected to be very close. The course, about three miles in length, takes the boys over several good hills and finishes with two laps around the track at Library Park. Captain Latham, Boreman, Mulcahey and Davis, a freshman, are counted upon to win points.

• • •

On Friday the team selected from the interclass winners will journey to Wakefield for a dual meet with the Wakefield High boys. Wakefield has already defeated Stoneham and Reading, and should make the going interesting for the other Mystic Valley team.

• • •

Eric Christensen, the star fullback of the Medford High team, has been declared ineligible by the school office, and he will not play in the game Saturday against Boston College High.

Robert Cowan of Cambridge has been elected captain of the Huntington School football team. Cowan played centre of the Cambridge Latin eleven last year.

• • •

The English High football squad will practice at Fenway Park for the remainder of the season through the kindness of President J. J. Lannin of the Red Sox.

George Weaver, the High School of Commerce star, who has been suffering from water on the knee, has returned to the football squad and hopes to regain his position.

• • •

The Newton High team has lost a valuable player in Cunningham, the guard, through a faculty edict and this will weaken the team in its game against Wellesley High on Saturday. Bankhart will probably play the position.

• • •

The postponed game between Arlington High and Milton High will be played this afternoon at Arlington.

Coach Dale of Chelsea High has passed his examinations for teacher in the Boston High Schools and will probably be situated at Dorchester High.

• • •

Arthur Doyle has been elected captain of the Malden High baseball team for next season. Doyle is a pitcher and is depended upon to win the Suburban League championship for Malden next season.

To Pick New York Site for Fed Park

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—It is learned today that organized baseball magnates are making every effort to ascertain the plans of the Federal League in regard to the threatened invasion of New York.

The independent league promoters, who were in session in this city last week considering the proposition, will meet here again on Friday, when a site for the park may be selected for the new club. Nothing definite has been decided upon to date, but the Feds have four possible sites under consideration, and it is said the necessary capital has been obtained to start the club.

B. A. A. Sets Date for Boxing Tourney

The B. A. A. will conduct its first amateur tournament of the season on Saturday night, November 14, in the gymnasium on Exeter street. There will be bouts in five open classes, 108 pounds, 115 pounds, 125 pounds, 135 pounds and heavyweight. Entries will close on November 7 with George V. Brown at the B. A. A.

Logan Loses to Borrell.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 21.—Joe Borrell of Philadelphia won an easy victory over Frank Logan of California in the main attraction of the Coliseum Athletic Club's inaugural offering at the Old Monumental Theatre.

Casey on 'Pro.' Five.

Edward "Pat" Casey, former star football and basketball player at Brown University, has signed to play with the Brockton professional basketball team being organized by William Shinnick, former Y. M. C. A. star.

GREEN CRIPPLES REJOIN SQUAD FOR TIGER GAME

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21.—Walking Stick, 15, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian from Oklahoma, has taken charge of the Dartmouth cheering section, and several new Indian yells, which will be used for the first time by the "White Indians" next Saturday down at Princeton in the new Palmer Stadium, have been taken up.

In the last practice the freshman team was brought over to the varsity field to indulge in the first scrimmage of the year.

Although the varsity was unable to make consistent gains through the freshmen by old football, four touchdowns were made as a result of the new formations tried.

The formations were all open. Tuck made a beautiful drop kick and Pudrith kicked a placement over from the 31-yard line. The goals after touchdown were made by Pudrith and Spears.

The work of Whitney was a combination of fierceness and speed. He has entirely recovered from his injuries, and the coaches are not worried about him.

Murdock was used in the scrimmage and showed that he was in fair condition. Ed Curtis was out of it, his place being taken by Gerrish.

TIGER SQUAD TRIES OUT NEW FIELD IN PUNTING PRACTICE

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—The Tiger football players take the first workout in the Stadium today when the backs will be sent down to the new field to catch punts after the conclusion of the practice.

There was a motley array of first and second string men in the practice yesterday.

The second varsity lined up against the first for a quarter of an hour's workout. The result was a deadlock, although the second team came within an ace of winning.

Driggs carried the ball to the one-yard line on a sweeping run around the left end. The next play failed to put it over and on the third down there was a fumble and Glick recovered the ball for the varsity.

The regulars' attack had little driving power and was unable to gain consistently against their opponents.

Eberstadt, who has just recovered from an injury, took Boland's place at quarter and ran the team fairly well.

Tibbott showed up well on the offence. The varsity, however, was unable to come within striking distance of the scrub goal line.

McRae Beats Green in Gloucester Bout

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 21.—Howard McRae of Boston won a well-earned newspaper decision over Patsy Green of Cambridge in a lively ten-round bout at the Gloucester Social and Athletic Club.

The semi-final of six rounds between Young Aaronson of East Boston and Frankie Barrett of Cambridge, went to Aaronson.

The preliminary between Young Corbley and Kid Andrews of this city went four rounds to a draw.

"SUE for peace? Sue for peace when we have five million against their three?"

"It seems so, as the three millions are winning!" said the premier.

"Sue for peace because women go hysterical? Do you suppose that the Browns will listen now when they think they have the advantage? Leave peace to me! Give me forty-eight hours more! I have told our troops to hold and they will hold. I don't mistake cowardly telegraphers' rumors for facts—"

THE CROCKERY BROKEN

"Pardon me a moment," the premier interrupted. "I must answer a local call." So astute a man of affairs as he knew that Westerling's voice, storming, breaking, tightening with effort at control, confirmed all reports of disaster. "In fact, the crockery is broken—for you and for me!" said the premier when he spoke again. His life had been a gamble and the gamble had turned against him in playing for a great prize. There was an admirable stoicism in the way he announced the news he had received from the local call: "The chief of police calls me up to say that the uprising is too vast for him to hold. There isn't any mutiny, but his men simply have become a part of public opinion. A mob of women and children is starting for the palace to ask me what I have done with their husbands, brothers, sons, and fathers. They won't have to break in to find me. I'm very tired. I'm ready. I shall face them from the balcony. Yes, Westerling, you and I have achieved a place in history, and they're far more bitter toward you than me. However, you don't have to come back."

"No, I don't have to go back! No. I was not to go back if I failed!" said Westerling dizzily.

* * * * * * *

In the inner room, whose opening door gave glimpses of Lanstron and the division chiefs, a magic of secret council which the juniors could not quite understand had wrought the wonders. Lanstron had not forgotten the dead. He could see them; he could see everything that happened. Had not Partow said to him: "Don't just read reports. Visualize men and events. Be the artillery, be the infantry, be the wounded — live and think in their places. In this way only can you really know your work!"

His elation when he saw his plans going right was that of the instrument of Partow's training and Marta's service. He pressed the hands of the men around him; his voice caught in his gratitude, and his breaths were very short at time, like those of a spent, happy runner at the goal. Feeding on victory and growing greedy of more, his division chiefs were discussing how to press the war till the Grays sued for peace; and he was silent in the midst of their talk, which was interrupted by the ringing of the tunnel telephone. When he came out of his bedroom, Lanstron's distress was so evident that those who were seated arouse, and the others drew near in inquiry and sympathy. It seemed to them that the chief of staff, the head of the machine, who had left the room, had returned an individual.

NEWS A BLOW

"The connection was broken while we were speaking!" he said blankly. "That means it must have been cut by the enemy—that the enemy knows of its existence!"

"Perhaps not. Perhaps an accident —a chance shot," said the vice-chief.

"No, I am sure not," Lanstron replied. "I am sure it was cut deliberately, and not by her."

"The Fifty-third Regiment is going forward in that direction—the same regiment that defended the house—and it can't go any faster than it is going," the vice-chief continued, rather incoherently. He and the others no less felt the news as a personal blow. Though absent in person, Marta had become in spirit an intimate of their hopes and councils.

"She is helpless—in their power!" Lanstron said. "There is no telling what they might do to her in the rage of discovery. I must go to her! I am going to the front!"

* * * * * * *

A young officer of the Grays who was with the signal corps section, trying to keep a brigade headquarters in touch with the staff during the retreat, two or three miles from the Galland house, had seen what looked like an insulated telephone wire at the bottom of a crater in the earth made by the explosion of a heavy shell. The instructions to all subordinates from the chief of intelligence to look for the source of the leak in information to the Browns made him quick to see a clew in anything unusual. He jumped down into the crater and not only found his plans rewarded, but that the wire was intact and ran underground in either direction. Who had laid it? Not the Grays. Why was it there? He called for one of his men to bring a buzzer, and it was the work of little more than a minute to cut the wire and make an attachment. Then he heard a woman's voice talking to "Lanny." Who was Lanny? He waited till he had heard enough to know that it was none other than Lanstron, the chief of staff of the Browns, and the woman must be a spy. An orderly dispatched to the chief of intelligence with the news returned with the order:

"Drop everything and report to me in person at once."

* * * * * * * *

"For this I have made my sacrifice!" Marta thought. "The killing goes on by Lanny's orders, not by Westerling's, this time."

Leaving her mother to enjoy the prospect, a slow-moving figure, trance-like, she went along the first terrace path to a point near the veranda where the whole sweep of landscape with its panorama of retreat magnetized her senses. Like the gray of lava, the Gray soldiery was erupting from the range; in columns, still under the control of officers, keeping to the defiles; in swarms and batches, under the control of nothing but their own emotions. Mostly they were hugging cover, from instinct if not from direction, but some relief on straight lines of flight and speed of foot for escape. Coursing aeroplanes were playing a new part. Their wireless was informing the Brown gunners where the masses were thickest.

ROUT AND DISORDER

This way and that the Brown artillery fire drove retreating bodies, prodding them in the back with the fearful shepherdry of their shells. Officers' swords flashed in the faces of the bolters or in holding rear-guards to their work. Officers and orderlies were galloping hither and thither with messages, in want of wires. Commanders had been told to hold, but how and where to hold? They saw neighboring regiments and brigades going and they had to go. The machine, the complicated modern war machine, was broken; the machine, with its nerves of intelligence cut, became a thing of disconnected parts, each part working out its own salvation. Authority ceased to be that of the bureau and army lists. It was that of units racked by hardship, acting on the hours' demand.

Gorged with the pass road, overflowing with the struggling tumult of men and vehicles. Self-preservation breaking the bonds of discipline was in the ascendant, and it sought the highway, even as water keeps to the river bed. Like specks on the laboring tide was the white bandages. An ambulance trying to cut out to one side was overturned. The frantic chauffeur and hospital-corps orderly were working to extricate the wounded from their painful position. A gun was overturned against the ambulance. A melee of horses and men was forming at the foot of the garden gate in front of the narrowing bounds of the road into the town, as a stream banks up before a jam of driftwood. The struggle for right of way became increasingly wild; the dam of men, horses and wagons grew. A Brown dirigible was descending toward the great target; but on closer view its commander forbore, the humane impulse outweighing the desire for retribution for colleagues in camp and mess who had gone down in a holocaust in the aerial battles of the night.

Under the awful spell of the panorama, she did not see Westerling, who had stopped only a few feet distant with his aide and his valet, nor did he notice her as the tumult glazed his eyes. He was an artist who looks on the ribbons of the canvas of his painting, or the sculptor on the fragments of his statue. Worse still, with no faith to give him fortitude except the materialistic, he saw the altar of his god of military efficiency in ruins. He who had not allowed the word retreat to enter his lexicon now saw a rout. He had laughed at reserve armies in last night's feverish defiance, at Turcas' advocacy of a slower and surer method of attack. In those hours of smiting at a wall with his fists and forehead, in denial of all the truth so clear to the average military logic, if he had only even a few conventional directions all this disorder would have been avoided. His army could have fallen back in orderly fashion to their own range. The machine out of order, he had attempted no repair; he had allowed it to thrash itself to pieces.

THE LEAK FOUND

The artillery's maceration of the human jam suddenly ceased; perhaps because the gunners had seen the Red Cross flag which a doctor had the presence of mind to wave. Westerling turned from a sight worse to him than the killing—that of the flowing retreat along the road pressing frantically over the dead and wounded in growing disorder for the cover of the town. Near by were Bellini, the chief of intelligence, and a subaltern who had arrived only a minute before. The subaltern was dust-covered. He seemed to have come in from a hard ride. Both were watching Marta, as if waiting for her to speak. She met Westerling's look steadily, her eyes dark and still and in his the reflection of the vague realization of more than he had guessed in her relations with Hugo.

"Well," she breathed to Westerling, "the war goes on!"

"That's it! That's the voice!" exclaimed the subaltern in an explosion of recognition.

A short, sharp laugh of irony broke from Bellini; the laugh of one whose suspicions are confirmed in the mixture of the sublime and the ridiculous. Marta looked around at the interruption, alert, on guard.

"You seem amused," she remarked curiously.

"No, but you must have been," replied Bellini, hoarsely. "Early this morning, not far from the castle, this young officer found in the crater made by a ten-inch shell a wire that ran in a conduit underground. The wire was intact. He tapped it. He heard a voice thanking some one for her part in the victory, and it seems that the woman's voice that answered is yours, Miss Galland. So, General Westerling, the leak in information was over this wire from our staff into the Browns' headquarters, as Bouchard believed and as I came to believe."

So long had Marta expected this moment of exposure that it brought no shock. Her spirit had undergone many subtle rehearsals for the occasion.

"Yes, that is true," she heard herself saying, a little distantly, but very quietly and naturally.

BREATH CAME HARD

Westerling fell back as from a blow in the face. His breath came hard at first, like one being strangled. Then it sank deep in his chest and his eyes were blood-shot, as a bull's in his final effort against the matador. He raised a quivering, clenched fist and took a step nearer her.

But far from flinching, Marta seemed to be greeting the blow, as if she admitted his right to strike. She was without any sign of triumph and with every sign of relief. Lying was at an end. She could be truthful.

"Do you recall what I said in the reception room at the hotel?" she asked.

The question sent a flash into a hidden chamber of his mind. Now the only thing he could remember of that interview was the one remark which hitherto he had never included in his recollection of it.

"You said I could not win." He drew out the words painfully.

"When you said that you brought on this war to gratify your ambition, I chose to be one of the weapons of war; I fought for civilization, for my home, with the only means I had against the wickedness of a victory of conquest—the precedent of it in this age—a victory which should glorify such trickery as you practised on your people."

"I should like to shoot you dead!" cried Bellini.

"And you let me make love to you!" Westerling said in a dazed, groping monotone to Marta.

"Rather, you made love to yourself through me," she answered, not harshly, not even emphatically, but merely as a statement of passionless fact. "If you dared to endure for the sake of your ambition; if—"

She was interrupted by a sharp zip in the air. Westerling dodged and looked about wildly.

"What is that?" he asked. "What?"

FIRST TIME UNDER FIRE

Five or six zips followed like a charge of wasps flying at a speed that made them invisible. Marta felt a brush of air past her cheek and Westerling went chalky white. It was the first time he had been under fire. But these bullets were only strays. No more came.

"Come, general, let us be going!" urged the aide, touching his chief on the arm.

"Yes, yes!" said Westerling hurriedly.

Francois, who had picked up the coat that had fallen from Westerling's shoulders with his start at the buzzing, held it while his master thrust his hands through the sleeves. The absence in him of that quality which is the soldier's real glory, the picture of this deserted leader, this god of a machine who had been crushed by his machine, his very lack of stoicism or courage—all this suddenly appealed to Marta's quick sympathies. They had once drunk tea together.

"Oh, it was not personal! I did not think of myself as a person or of you as one—only of principles and of thousands of others—to end the killing—to save our country to its people! Oh, I am sorry and, personally, I'm horrible—horrible!" she called after him in a broken, quavering gust of words which he heard confusedly in tragic mockery.

He made no answer; he did not even look around. Head bowed and hardly seeing the path, he permitted the aide to choose the way, which lay across the boundary of the Galland estate.

HER HUSBAND'S WIDOW

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine.

Leslie attracts the attention of Oswald Varney and is rallied by her companion, Rose Darley.

SYNOPSIS.

Leslie Morne, a beautiful young girl, is governess in an English middle-class family. She is romantic in temperament and has visions of a splendid future. Going for a walk by the sea, she is annoyed by a man she does not know. She is rescued from his attentions by another stranger. Leslie thinks her knight is the handsomest man she has ever seen, and wonders if she has found her Prince Charming at last. She meets him again and they fall in love with one another. He asks her to marry him, and although she feels very badly when she finds he is only an army sergeant she consents.

Soon after their marriage she receives a box of her mother's belongings. In it she finds a number of letters written by her father, and although they do not give his name, they reveal that he was a man of title.

Her husband is ordered to Egypt. Six months later, just after receiving a letter asking her to come out and join him, she reads in a newspaper that Sergeant Victor Steele has been killed in an affray with marauding dervishes.

None of her acquaintances knew of her marriage and her friend, Rose Darley, advises her to keep quiet about it now. She shows her marriage certificate to Rose, who asks her how old she is.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

AFTER a protracted search Leslie discovered the certificate in the envelope in which it had been placed by the registrar and laid it before her friend. Miss Darley studied it with the interest which such documents always appear to arouse in middle-class English women. Her eyes traveled eagerly up and down the columns. Then she looked up. "How old are you?" she asked sharply.

"Twenty next birthday," replied Leslie.

"But your age here is given as twenty-one." Miss Darley placed an accusing finger on the entry.

"It it?" said Leslie, not much interested. Then, with a sudden flash of recollection, "Oh, I know how that was. You see, he couldn't have got the license if he had admitted that I was under age. We should have had to get my aunt's consent, I suppose. Does it much matter?"

Miss Darley leaned back, contemplated her friend, and emitted a low whistle. "I'm afraid it matters a great deal," she said solemnly. "If he made false statements, I'm sure that made the license void—and the marriage, too."

The two girls stared blankly at each other. The blood slowly crimsoned Leslie's usually pale face.

"Do you mean to say that I was not properly married to him?" she asked.

"That's about it, dear. You see, he had no right to marry you without your parents' or guardians' consent. I thought every girl knew that. And he made a deliberate false statement about your age."

NO WIFE AT ALL IN THE EYES OF THE LAW

Leslie paled again, sat down, and clasped and unclasped her hands nervously.

"Then, in the eyes of the law," she said, never suspecting that Rose Darley's view was inaccurate, "I wasn't his wife at all."

The older girl watched her curiously. "I don't see that it matters much now," she said soothingly. "You believed you were married all right. No one could blame you. Nobody knows you ever lived with him. But I'm afraid it's no good trying for the pension. They would find this out. That's off." And she handed the certificate back to her friend.

Leslie tried to define for her own guidance exactly what this surprise meant to her. She did not feel deeply moved. Once the suspicion presented itself that Victor had known that the marriage was invalid.

Well, if he had, in the circumstances of their departure from Hastings, no other course had been open to him, and one knew well that no thought of repudiating her as his wife had ever occurred to him. Her reflections always ended with a sigh. It did not matter at all now.

More and more as she pondered over this discovery it appeared to her that she must sever the tie which had bound their lives together. No one, except Rose, suspected her of having been his wife; and it seemed, after all, that she wasn't. Victor Steele was her sweetheart to be remembered only by herself.

As the months wore on, she was obliged to admit with a pang of self-reproach that she did not think about him very often. She blamed herself unjustly. Except the photograph which Rose Darley was careful to push out of sight for as long as possible, and the packet of letters containing her wedding ring, there was absolutely nothing to remind her of him.

She knew no one who had ever seen him. The spots which were in any way associated with him lay far off her usual track. His regiment had been sent to another part of the country, and she never caught sight of the once familiar uniform.

Victor had come into her life and gone out of it again in less than four months' time. At moments he seemed to her hardly more tangible than the dream heroes of her childhood. The wound had healed.

She brooded now much more over her future than her past. She wondered what was to become of her. Was she always to be a library assistant? Her old restlessness returned.

"It's a pity you're such a prude," said Rose to her one afternoon as they sat in a fashionable tearoom in Bond street. "There's an awfully swagger-looking man at the table behind you, staring at you for all he is worth. If you don't care to turn your head you can look at him over your shoulder in this."

She passed a tiny pocket mirror across the table under cover of the music program. To Leslie it seemed that the unseen man's gaze was scorching her neck. She glanced with affected carelessness into the glass. She knew him instantly for the hero of her adventure on Cromer cliffs.

She stared fascinated at the reflection. Suddenly she was aware that their eyes had met in the glass, and that he was smiling at her in frank recognition.

CHAPTER VI.

SHE lowered the glass and pretended to have been examining the poise of her hat. She bit her lips nervously and hoped he could not see the redness of her cheeks.

"I believe he knows you," ventured Miss Darley, who had seen the man's smile.

"I met him once years ago," said Leslie, in a low tone. "It's hardly possible that he remembers me. If he does he will introduce himself. Let's go now."

The two girls rose, Miss Darley somewhat reluctantly, and moved toward the stairs. Leslie, she hardly knew why, steadily diverted her gaze from the man at the next table as they passed him by. As they descended the stairs her friend turned sharply on her. "You are a fool," she began, then, hearing a step behind her, checked herself and swung out at the door, shutting Leslie in.

The man had followed them. "Allow me," he said, politely, passing his hand over Leslie's shoulder to open the door. He held it open for her to pass and looked intently in her face. "Why didn't you want me to speak to you?" he asked.

"I didn't think you remembered me," faltered the girl, turning to face him as he passed into the street.

His eyes met hers with a quizzical expression. "Oh, but of course I did," he said in a tone that would not have carried conviction to most people; perhaps he felt this, for he at once asked, "Are you going up Bond street? As your friend has disappeared, perhaps I may come with you?"

He did not wait for her leave, but took up a position beside her, falling into step with her. She was immensely glad at their meeting, and only feared that looking into her eyes he might know it. He could little imagine the glamour with which a young girl's fancy had first invested him and which had taken on an ever more golden hue the past six years.

Little Mary's Essay — The Reason Widowers Always Seem So Care Free

By DOROTHY DIX

WIDOWERS are men who look like the pictures in mamma's Bible of the martyrs that have just come through great afflictions. Only, of course, the martyrs have halos, but widowers are mostly bald headed, so it's just the same, and they look like you feel just after you've had a tooth out, and you are that calm and happy that you love all the world.

Widows are always telling you their troubles, but widowers look like they haven't any troubles to tell.

Widowers are classy dressers and have lots of good clothes. When a man is a married man he does not care how he looks, and he wears trousers that bag at the knee, and comfortable collars, and any kind of a necktie. But when a man becomes a widower the first thing he does is to go out and buy himself a lot of good clothes and the latest thing in neckties and collars.

I do not know why this is so, but it is so.

There is also another curious thing about widowers that I do not understand, and that is that when a man becomes a widower he looks about twenty years younger than he did while his wife was alive. When his wife was alive he walked with his shoulders hunched over, and he could not go out to the theatre in the evenings because he had the rheumatism, but when he becomes a widower he straightens up and takes tango lessons.

There are two kinds of widowers, widowers with children and widowers without children. Ladies prefer the widowers without children, but all of the old maids and widows are very kind to the poor little motherless children of a good looking widower, and they take the children to ride in their automobiles, and bring them dolls and call them little loves, and say they are so interesting.

I wish my papa was a widower, and then the ladies would take me to the matinee and bring me candy like they do Marjorie Graham, whose papa is our preacher, and who is tall and handsome, and a widower.

Widowers don't stay widowers long. I expect they get lonesome for somebody to quarrel with and blame for everything that goes wrong. Also, there isn't any fun in doing things that you hadn't ought to when nobody notices whether you do them or not. Also it is most expensive to hire cooks and nurse girls, and people to take care of your children and make them clothes. Also servants are always giving notice and leaving, while a wife is cheap, and has got to stay whether she likes her place or not.

Widowers have only one eye. I know this, because my mother says that it is so easy to get on the blind side of a widower. Also she says that anybody can catch a widower with any kind of bait. Also she says that she hopes that when I'm grown I'll marry a widower, and when I asked her why, she said it was because widowers have been house broken and domesticated by some other woman, and that a man's first wife was a good, kind lady, who saved up money for the second wife to spend.

The Bible is full of promises and consolation for widows, but there are none for widowers. My papa says that widowers don't need any help. They can console themselves.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

School Board Is Sending Pupils to the Food Fair

The School Committee of Boston, acting on the request of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and on the recommendation of Superintendent Dyer and Dr. Claxton, director of the Bureau of Education at Washington, has voted to accept the offer of the Boston Domestic Science and Pure Food Exposition to allow the principals of schools to distribute tickets of admission to the exposition which admit children free when accompanied by an adult.

In securing the United States Government Exhibit from the various departments at Washington it was expressly requested that the school children have an opportunity to see this splendid educational exhibit, which is to be taken directly from the Mechanics Building to the Pan-American Exposition in San Francisco. This exhibit, now in Boston, includes the remarkable $100,000 Panama Canal model, which every school child should see.

Alarming Death Rate From

CANCER

75,000 DIE yearly; of this number about 30,000 die from cancer of stomach and liver; 12,000 of the uterus; 10,000 of the intestines and 8,000 of the breast. Between 1890 and 1910 the cancer rate in Massachusetts rose from 42 to 83.

If you have a lump or sore in the breast, face, lip or on any part of the body, come here at once or send for symptom blank and 76-page booklet. We never use the knife; our treatment is by absorption, and that it is successful is proven by hundreds of cured patients.

30 AND 32 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCT. 21, 1914.

To the "Peace at Any Price" Gentlemen—

You Have Learned That There Is Only ONE Price for Peace. And That Is ADEQUATE DEFENCE

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Many men in this country—some of them with influence—have preached the doctrine that the way to keep peace is to keep yourself DEFENCELESS.

These men have opposed the building of a navy even of moderate size.

They have held solemnly that war was no longer POSSIBLE.

They have said that nobody would dream of attacking us.

They have declared that if any ruler showed an insane, arrogant ambition to attack, conquer and rule those that had not offended him, the people of such a ruler would rise and tear him from his place.

We suppose that these gentlemen who speak of themselves as "peace advocates" have been doing some earnest thinking in the days that have elapsed since the declaration of war.

They have found that war is NOT impossible, and that when it comes, it comes on the most gigantic scale.

They have seen that one country at least, England, owes the security that it has enjoyed hitherto exclusively to a GIGANTIC, ADEQUATE NAVY.

They see also that the menace to England, if there be a menace, is the earnestness with which the Germans have worked at THEIR navy, their great guns that make fixed forts useless, and their courageously managed submarines that may prove the big, slow BATTLESHIPS OF STEEL as useless as the steel FORTS.

It is not in any spirit of disagreeable criticism that the people of this country earnestly question those who have used their power TO KEEP THE COUNTRY UNPREPARED FOR TROUBLE.

We have seen enough of war and its consequences not to want any dissension or bitterness among ourselves.

We want thoughtful, earnest discussion, and PROMPT ACTION, and readiness and defence in proportion to our power, and in proportion to the value of that which we have to defend.

We ask earnest citizens to consider what the situation would be in this country if we were now enduring such an attack as the allies are making upon Germany, or such an attack as that made by Germany upon the allies.

How pitifully insufficient our navy would be.

How quickly we should be made to realize that only great, powerfully armed ships with a strong fleet of submarines and torpedo boats could protect the entrance to our Canal.

How serious would seem to us that slide in the Culebra cut just announced, closing the Canal for many days.

How eagerly the citizens would inquire as to our shipbuilding facilities, our powder making and cannon making facilities.

The one national question would be, "How rapidly can we build battleships? How many of them can we build?"

Congress would appropriate money without limit, and without question—a thousand millions, FIVE THOUSAND MILLIONS, IF THE MONEY COULD BE WISELY SPENT.

But in a violent emergency money CANNOT be wisely spent.

If we found ourselves suddenly threatened, if the blackest and most horrible war came to us out of a clear sky as it has come to Europe, and if there were great alliances against us, we should be for the time as helpless as China, and as unwieldy.

We should be hurriedly and inefficiently building what ships we could. We should be feverishly drilling untrained men, trying to prepare crews for those ships.

Not a man would be heard opposing armament, and not a man WOULD BE PROUD OF HIS PAST EFFORTS TO KEEP THE COUNTRY UNPREPARED.

We do not EXPECT war. We do not WANT it. We intend to do nothing that shall DESERVE it.

But even the fool has learned his lesson—WAR MAY COME AT ANY TIME.

It may come from some single power, it may come from a combination.

It may come from the East, where our exclusion laws have bred hatred. It may come from the East and the West combined.

And the duty of this country is to work and maintain peace by paying the only price that can buy peace—ADEQUATE DEFENCE, A GREAT, POWERFUL NAVY ON THE WATER, UNDER THE WATER, AND IN THE AIR, AND AN ARMY SUFFICIENT FOR COAST DEFENCE, AND SO ORGANIZED TO INCLUDE A GREAT NUMBER OF TRAINED OFFICERS, ABLE AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE TO TRANSFORM A COURAGEOUS CITIZEN INTO AN EFFICIENT SOLDIER.

We have learned the bitter, shameful lesson that the human race is no more on a permanent peace basis, no more secure against ambition, brutality and lust of conquest than it was a thousand years ago.

We hope that we shall build ourselves eventually into a power so great as to be BEYOND attack.

But that will never come, unless, as we grow in numbers, power and peaceable desire, we grow also IN THE POWER OF DEFENCE, REALIZATION OF DANGER, AND DETERMINATION TO BE READY.

What the nation should do is the question that ought to be foremost in the mind of every earnest citizen capable of understanding the lesson that is being taught to us by Europe.

What the country should do in the way of preparation should be the thought of every citizen out of his childhood, and the earnest task of every lawmaker responsible for the national safety.

The matter shall be discussed often in this newspaper. It ought to be discussed by every intelligent reader, and the strongest support given to those in public office THAT HAVE THE INTELLIGENCE TO KNOW THAT WE HAVE NO MORE THE DIVINE RIGHT OF PEACE THAN THE COUNTRIES OF EUROPE, AND THAT OUR ONLY SAFETY LIES IN BEING READY.

How Helen Helped

CHAPTER VI.—WHEN TEMPTATION CAME

AFTER young Van Buren had tried to get Frank in trouble at the office by spreading rumors about him among the heads of the other departments Frank took his hat one afternoon and went out, telling Helen he would be right back. But he did not come back that day, and the next morning got someone to phone, saying he was sick and wouldn't be in until the following day.

Frank wasn't sick, but was trying to drink up all the whiskey in town and kidding himself that it made him forget his troubles, as so many other deluded persons do. But, as is always the way, the few moments of oblivion are much overbalanced by the reaction and misery to come.

Frank was back on the job the next day and, except after close observation, it would have been hard to tell that he had had a drink.

"Why—why—what's the matter with me?"

Several times during the day Frank slipped out to get a "bracer." Helen realized that there was something very wrong with him, and she also realized she was getting to think more and more about him. But he was so different from any other man she had known she couldn't quite understand him.

That afternoon, as Frank sat at his desk, three indorsed checks for many thousands of dollars came through his department. As Frank looked at them he mused, "Why not get these cashed and beat it? I could get away as easy as shooting fish, and they would never catch me. Why, it's a cinch." . .

Then Frank gave a start and realized what he had been thinking.

"Why—why—what's the matter with me? That can't be me—it's what I've been drinking."

Then he bent closer over his desk with his head in his hands.

And Helen sat looking at him wonderingly.—H. C.

BOOK HEROES

By William F. Kirk

"YOUR tub is ready," his valet said.
Young Mayfair leapt from his downy bed,
Shed his pajamas of silken cloth,
And dove, feet first, in his morning bawth.
After a breakfast of luscious fruit
His valet brought him a riding suit;
Then off to the hunt, with the fierce hounds leading—
And his every move showed birth and breeding.

Young Sweeney crawled from his canvas tent,
Put on his shoes and away he went
On his vicious broncho, lickety-split
Over the desert—and part of it;
For the cattle rustlers were on a ride,
And he was a ranger, true and tried.

His tongue was dry and his head was sore
From the nips he had taken the night before;
He had no valet to keep him neat,
No morning bawth and no fruit to eat.
One's taste in heroes is like one's creed.
And nobody's telling you what to read,
So if you like Mayfair, cultured and trim,
I'll take Sweeney and you take him.

What American Women Can Do During the War

By MRS. J. J. STORROW

The following appeal to the women of America was made by the president of the Boston Women's City Club at the vesper service in the Channing Unitarian Church, Dorchester, Sunday evening. In response to its request, Mrs. Storrow has kindly accorded the AMERICAN the use of the manuscript of her address.

IN this crisis of history there seems to me many things we can do and much that we must do if we are to keep true to the standards and ideals of our country.

We must study the war, not as a terrible and exciting drama, which we are watching from a safe distance with intense interest, but in a way to learn the lessons it teaches. Without bitterness or prejudice we must do our best to understand and to profit by the understanding in such a way that when the time comes we can help to lessen the mad hatred which the war engenders, and do our best to bring about the understanding that will make another war impossible.

It is ignorance of each other and ignorance of what is to their own best advantage that has brought all five nations to this pass.

Nothing is more striking than the firm conviction each one has that they are fighting in self-defence, and for the right. It is always true of every quarrel, in all differences of opinion, in all great opposing movements, each side believes it is right, and the cause of all the trouble is ignorance on one side, or on both sides. Race prejudice, greed, jealousy, envy, suspicion, desire for aggrandizement, desire for revenge, that lead to war, to private quarrels, to enmity between capital and labor, are all due to ignorance of the fact that our interests are identical, that the good of all is the ultimate best for each country as well as for each individual.

Perhaps we have read enough of Pan-Germanism to understand Germany's military attitude, which to us seems not in advance, but behind the spirit of the age; but we do not know enough of her wonderful, patient industry and her system of co-operation that enables her now to stand united. Horrible as is the destruction it causes, we cannot but look with wonder and admiration at the strength and ingenuity of all her machinery of war, which works in this great emergency without a hitch, and at the unanimity of her people supporting the spirit of militarism which seems to us so unholy. With them there is not a doubt of the righteousness of their cause.

Let Us Study Germany's Methods in Commerce and Industry

Instead, then, of reading General Bernhardi's book and other war books that excite our indignation, let us study Germany's methods of trade, commerce, manufacture and industries. We have so much to learn. Our ways are haphazard, without co-operation. Our freedom has led to every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost. We must stop that and do a little intensive work. Our efforts so far at co-operation have led to the much-criticised trusts on one hand and to labor unions on the other, of which the tendency sometimes seems to level down rather than to level up. The public is a third party which gets scant consideration from the other two. Our real interests are the same, though individual greed may prevent our seeing it, and the great lesson for us to learn is to pull together. The war teaches us the advantage of close organization, system and method. We must apply those principles to American life. We have to prove that our great democracy, through freedom, can become as closely knit, as efficient and much stronger than an autocracy.

We are working now over plans for a union of women, not to rival or take the place of the federated clubs, but to work in co-operation with all existing associations, to become a clearing house, so to speak, for associations of all kinds, directing new energy into channels already prepared and reaching women who are not yet connected with any association. I believe we can co-operate to such advantage that no one can afford to stay out of the union.

There are some societies whose business it is to welcome the poorer immigrants, but we have neglected to do much for the self-supporting, self-respecting foreigners who make their home temporarily or permanently among us. They live in groups detached from the social life of native-born Americans and from groups of other nationalities. There is much we can do, we women particularly, to promote friendship, even now, between citizens of the warring nations living among us. In that way we can best show a neutrality that will be warm with sympathy.

Give Immediate Help by Gifts of Money and Clothing

And we shall not stop at the boundaries of our country.

We cannot maintain the Monroe Doctrine, in which we believe, by our own armed force. The other republics of North and South America must want it maintained, and we must have mutual friendship and confidence in each other. This we are only beginning to think about. Other countries have built up strong ties of friendship and business, while we have been indifferent. It will not be surprising if we find it difficult to overcome the distrust they naturally feel for us, yet they are our near neighbors and should be our close friends.

I am making no definite practical suggestion for immediate action, but in a few weeks I hope the plans for the union of women will have reached a point where we can do so. In the meantime there are the obvious ways of giving immediate help to the Belgians and others ruined by the war by gifts of money and clothing. I am a member of the Belgian Relief Committee which will forward everything sent them, and the Federal Trust Company will forward the money collected.

Some who cannot give money or clothing are knitting bands, wristers, stockings and mufflers for the soldiers of all countries who are going to suffer from cold this Winter. I have the directions for knitting all those articles which we have been told the soldiers need, and am having the directions printed to distribute to all who will use them, and I will mail them to anyone who asks for them. My address is in the telephone book. I wish it might become the custom this Winter for women to carry their knitting with them to concerts and lectures and the theatre. If we women over here would do that we could lessen materially the suffering this Winter.
